MAYOR COLLINS DEMANDS 80-CENT GAS

BRITISH WARSHIPS IN PATH OF CZAR'S FLEET

BALTIC SQUADRON HALTED

ROJESTVENSKY'S SHIPS HELD AT VIGO BY ST. PETERSBURG ORDERS.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Great Britain has formally notified Russia that, pending a settlement of the North Sea atrocity, the Russian Baltic fleet will not be permitted to pass beyond Tangier.

The Channel fleet, under Lord Charles Beresford, has established a patrol, and should a southward passage be attempted the Russian warships will be halted near the Straits of Gibraltar.

The home fleet is under way to reinforce the Channel fleet. Two cruisers and eight torpedo boats passed Dover to the southward to-day. The Mediterranean fleet is also proceeding at full speed from the Adriatic to Gibraltar.

Russia Agrees to an Inquiry.

Russia has apparently accepted England's declaration in good grace. Admiral Rojestvensky has been notified by telegraph to detain at Vigo, Spain, all of the vessels that took part in the attack on the fishing fleet. A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that Count Lamsdorff, Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, has notified the British Ambassador, Sir Charles Hardinge, that Russia will consent to an immediate inquiry at Vigo.

It is reported from Paris that this Government has agreed to submit the matter to an international commission. No confirmation of this report can be obtained in Government circles in London. It was not discussed after the cabinet meeting, which lasted from noon until 1:45 o'clock this afternoon.

France Sides With Russia.

France has gone to the aid of her ally, Russia. M. Delcasse, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, has made energetic representations to Lord Lansdowne that if England humiliates Russia too far she cannot count upon the sympathy of France.

Germany also has shown active sympathy for Russia and a desire to save her humiliation and prevent war. The German Government has placed before Lord Lansdowne a quantity of circumstantial evidence of the presence of the Japanese in European waters. It was Germany who warned Russia that the Baltic fleet might expect attack in the North Sea.

The attitude of these two Governments, particularly of France,

Points, in Application to the State Gas Commissioners, to Great Profits of Companies, and Asks Cut of Twenty Cents Per Thousand to Private Consumers.

Mayor Collins made a formal demand for eighty cent gas for the people of Boston, and a reduction inthe price to eighty cents per 1,000 cubic feet to the city, in a letter to the Gas and Electric Light Commissioners, made public this afternoon.

The attention of the Mayor was called to the enormous profits of the gas companies in a circular issued by Kidder, Peabody & Co., soliciting subscriptions to gas stocks. In view of these exorbitant profits, the Mayor calls upon the commissioners to enforce a reduction from the price of gas fixed twelve years ago, of twenty cents per 1,000 cubic feet to private consumers, who now pay $1, and of ten cents to the city, which now pays ninety cents, except in Brighton, where the price is seventy cents.

The Mayor's letter in full follows:

"Mayor's Office, Boston, Mass., October 27, 1904.

"To the Gas and Electric Light Commissioners:

"The undersigned, the Mayor of the city of Boston, a city in which the Boston Gas Light Company, the Brookline Gas Light Company, the Dorchester Gas Light Company, the Jamaica Plain Gas Light Company, the South Boston Gas Light Company, the Roxbury Gas Light Company, the Bay State Gas Company of Massachusetts, and the Massachusetts Pipe Line Gas Company, said companies being now owned and operated by the Massachusetts Gas Companies so-called, are located, complains that the price of gas to the public is maintained at the price fixed more than twelve years ago, although certain circulars of Kidder, Peabody & Co. soliciting subscriptions to stock of said Massachusetts Gas Companies, and the annual report of the board of trustees of the Massachusetts Gas Companies for the year ending June 30, 1904, copies of which are hereto annexed, coupled with the reports made to your board of the number of cubic feet of gas sold to consumers by said companies during the years covered by said reports, show that the profits made by said companies on each thousand cubic feet of gas sold are larger than they should be in a city of the density of population of Boston.

"The undersigned would, therefore, petition your board to order said gas light companies to reduce the price of gas to the City of Boston ten cents per thousand cubic feet and to all other consumers twenty cents per thousand cubic feet, or make such other or further reduction as your board may deem just, so that a reasonable price for gas may be established in Boston practically contemporaneously with the fixing of the capitalization of the Consolidated Company, to the end that consumers of gas and persons intending to invest in the securities of the Massachusetts Gas Companies Trust may be apprised of the price which the Boston Consolidated Gas Company is to charge for gas.

"PATRICK A. COLLINS,
"Mayor."

YOUTH KILLS BROTHER OF 19 WHILE HUNTING

FRATRICIDE IN STUPOR SINCE ACCIDENT IN WOODS, NEAR BANGOR, ME.

Special to the Boston American.

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 28.—Stanley Wilson, aged nineteen, senior in the Bangor High School, was shot and killed by his brother Herbert in the Pushaw woods a few miles from Bangor.

The three Wilson boys, Charles, Herbert and Stanley, started on Thursday for a two days' hunting trip.

On Friday morning news came from Pushaw that Stanley had been accidentally shot and killed by Herbert, who ever since the accident has remained in a stupor, overcome by grief.

The victim was a fine young man, a bright student and a member of the High School Cadets.

MORE CARS ON LYNN SERVICE

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Oct. 28.—Officials of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Company have taken prompt action in the matter of furnishing more extra cars between Lynn and Boston during rush hours after the crying need for them and the complaints of Lynn citizens had been made known through the BOSTON AMERICAN.

An extra car will leave Central square for Boston at 6 o'clock in the morning, arriving at Scollay square a little before 7. No intimation is given that more cars will be put on at 6 o'clock in the evening, the time when there is the most need of it, when hundreds of the employes of the General Electric Company are lined up at West Lynn.

Patrons of the Lynn and Peabody line are also waiting anxiously to hear from their appeal on the matter.

CHANGE CRETIC'S ROUTE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The White Star line steamer Cretic arrived to-day from Boston to take her place in the Mediterranean service. She will sail for Naples November 3. The Cretic formerly ran between Boston and Liverpool.

SAY HE NEARLY WRECKED TRAIN

Stephen Larkin, a Somerville boy of about fourteen, will be arraigned in the Charlestown Municipal Court to-morrow morning on the charges of maliciously stopping a train and of being a stubborn child. The police being the first charge and the boy's parents the second. Patrolman Olds accuses the boy of nearly causing a train wreck on the Mystic branch of the Boston & Maine in Charlestown by pulling the coupling pin of a freight train.

The offence was committed on May 2. Stephen was told to appear, but he did not come. His father, who lives at No. 2 Grange block, Walnut street, Charlestown, asked the police to bring the boy into court as a stubborn child. But the police could not find him.

Yesterday officer Olds discovered him and locked him up. He says the boy has been working near a grocery that was broken into and robbed a short time ago and that the Somerville police have a warrant for his arrest.

AUTHORESS WEDS CAPTAIN

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 28.—Miss Bertha Runkle, authoress, and Captain Louis H. Bash, U. S. A., have been married here. Captain Bash has just returned from the Philippines.

SAW MRS. HALL, WALCOTT WEPT

Joe Walcott, the colored prize fighter, arraigned in Municipal Court to-day on a charge of manslaughter in shooting Nelson Hall, colored, in Union Park Hall, October 18, burst into tears when unexpectedly brought face to face with Mrs. Hall in the inspectors' room at headquarters, while waiting to go into court. He waived examination and was held in $2,000 bonds for the Grand Jury.

Walcott's friends and his counsel, Charles Innes, of Vahey & Innes, claim the shooting of Hall was accidental.

Walcott received a bad wound in the right hand himself at the time of the shooting, and will never be able to use the hand in a prize fight again. Walcott has been in the City Hospital since the shooting. He was discharged and passed the night in Station 5. He was brought down to headquarters by Sergeant Goff.

PARKER WIRES HIS THANKS TO W. J. BRYAN

ESOPUS, N. Y., Oct. 28.—After reading Colonel Bryan's closing speech in Indiana in the newspapers to-day, Judge Parker sent the Nebraskan the following telegram of congratulation and thanks:

"Rosemount, Oct. 28.

"Hon. W. J. Bryan, Lincoln, Neb.:

"I wish to thank you for the splendid service you have rendered to the Democratic party in Indiana and elsewhere during the present campaign.

"ALTON B. PARKER."

AGED MAN HIT BY CAR, DYING

Timothy Reynolds, eighty-nine years old, of Sawyer street, Roxbury, is at the City Hospital with internal injuries, severe scalp wounds and a fractured right ankle, sustained by being struck by a trolley car on Tremont street to-day.

Reynolds was crossing at the corner of Kendall street, and had just got out of the way of an outward-bound car when he landed in the path of an inward-bound Brookline car. He was thrown thirty feet and was picked up unconscious.

At the hospital Reynolds's name is on the dangerous list. He gave the name of a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Lamont, living on Sawyer street, Roxbury, but the police have been unable to locate either her house or his daughter.

BRITISH FLEET BLOCKS PATH OF BALTIC SQUADRON

ENGLISH WARSHIPS CLEAR FOR ACTION AND LEAVE GIBRALTAR

Powerful Squadron Thrown Across Path the Russian Warships Must Take on Leaving Vigo.

is extremely distasteful to the English people. The interposition of France has accentuated the British feeling of hostility against Russia. Whatever influence the French representatives may have upon the British Government, it apparently makes the British public all the more anxious for war.

There has been no cessation of preparation for hostilities. The cabinet meeting went into session at noon. It was understood to have been called to give necessary sanction to orders to the fleets.

Benckendorff at Foreign Office.

Count Benckendorff called on Lord Lansdowne before the Cabinet meeting and remained until 11 o'clock. Ambassador Cambon also called on the Foreign Secretary.

At the Russian Embassy the following statement was made this afternoon:

"We are in constant communication with the British Government, and as a result of these communications the Embassy hopes there will be a speedy and satisfactory settlement. The whole aspect of the situation has decidedly improved."

The Cabinet meeting ended at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon. The Ministers were laughing and chatting as they left the Foreign Office. No statement has yet been given out regarding the meeting.

After the meeting of the cabinet Lord Lansdowne held a long conference with Russian Ambassador Benckendorff, at which, it is presumed, the latter was informed of the result of the deliberations.

King Edward attended the races at Newmarket this afternoon. This fact is taken as another indication that the issue will be amicably adjusted.

The absence of any reply from Russia caused the market to sag again to-day. Securities were weak and nervous. Dealings were small. On the stock exchange, however, Consols opened ⅛ up.

After the gloomy opening there was a sharp recovery and considerable activity from 87½ to 87 5-16, a rise of 7-16. Russian imperial fours are unchanged at 92.

The British Mediterranean fleet is proceeding with all speed from the Adriatic to Gibraltar, where it will join the Channel fleet, under Lord Charles Beresford. Under no circumstances will the Russian Baltic fleet be permitted to continue the journey to the Far East beyond that point unless Russia makes satisfactory terms with the English Government.

Report Increases English Fury.

Admiral Rojestvensky's explanation of the manner in which the North Sea tragedy was brought about is regarded as inconceivable here. It is an explanation which does not explain. It is a shallow, flimsy excuse, in the opinion of the British press and public, and even Lord Lansdowne has not hesitated to declare that the circumstances alleged by Rojestvensky are unbelievable.

The facts which remain unexplained are that the Russian battleships trained their powerful searchlights on the Hull fishing fleet for fully ten minutes before they began firing; that the shots were directed at the fleet and not in the direction of any warship of any character.

The furious mood of the British public has been accentuated by the Russian reports. The people regard them as impertinent evasions. The first actual excitement, such as was shown during the Boer war and has marked other crisis in English national affairs, was shown yesterday when it was stated in extra editions of the afternoon newspapers that a time limit has been set on Russia.

This news brought out the crowds, and since then public clamor for war has been growing. The full text of Rojestvensky's report has inflamed rather than allayed popular sentiment. The resentment of the people is intense, and the newspapers are more vigorous than ever in their denunciation of Russia and their demands for drastic action on the part of the government.

BRITISH PRESS AND PEOPLE URGE WAR

LONDON, Oct. 28.—"How much longer?" is the burden of the newspaper editorial articles to-day. Commenting upon the continued delay of the Russian Government and what is characterized as the amazing story that Admiral Rojestvensky presents in defense of his action, little disposition is displayed to listen for a moment seriously to the admiral's story.

The tone of the morning newspapers confess that the country is under the shadow of war, and that the word is now with Russia. "Home manufactured" some St. Petersburg correspondents say, with reference to the report.

The Standard describes Rojestvensky's whole story as the creation of a disordered imagination, bearing its refutation on its face, and says:

"For Russia to enter a controversy with England on the basis of such a tissue of misstatements can only lead to trouble."

The Daily Telegraph says: "If the admiral believes his own story, all that can be said is that the sooner he returns home and is looked after the better it will be for himself, his family and his country."

These extracts well represent the opinion of the country and press. The fact that the second Pacific squadron appears to have dined on vessels of various nationalities is regarded as proving that its officers were in a condition of nervous panic, rendering the squadron a danger to the world's commerce.

BRITISH WARSHIPS LEAVE GIBRALTAR

LONDON, Oct. 28.—A dispatch to the Central News from Gibraltar says that the British cruisers Lancaster, Suffolk, Doris, Hermes, Endymion and Theseus, with decks cleared for action, have left there, heading for the westward, and it is believed that their destination is Tangier.

A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says the cruisers have left Gibraltar for Vigo, Spain, from which port the Russian Baltic fleet has just departed.

The alleged purpose of the fleet's departure is that of making a sham attack against the rock of Gibraltar.

A division of the Mediterranean fleet, comprising six battleships, all the armored cruisers and twenty torpedo boats, is expected to arrive at Gibraltar to-day.

The British armored cruiser Bacchante, with Rear Admiral Baldwin Walker on board; the battleship Albemarle, flagship of Rear Admiral Hamilton, the battleship Montague and six torpedo boat destroyers have arrived at Veletta, Island of Malta, from Corfu.

"KNIAZ SUVAROFF," FLAGSHIP OF ADMIRAL ROJESTVENSKY.

ONLY A BLUNDER, SAYS WOOLSEY

Professor Theodore S. Woolsey, head of the Department of International Law at Yale, writes this opinion for the BOSTON AMERICAN:

BY PROFESSOR WOOLSEY, OF YALE.

I feel very confident that the extraordinary attack by the Russian Baltic squadron upon the British North Sea trawlers will prove to be a blunder merely, possibly caused by the nervous condition of the Russians and their misunderstanding of the signals and plans of the fishermen.

An explanation, apology and payment to the sufferers will promptly follow. The questions of interest then would be as to the probable quality of the Russian seamanship and the possible delay of the fleet pending investigation.

RUSSIANS FIRED ON SWEDISH FISHING SMACK

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger, dated Geestemunde, October 27, says:

"The Swedish fishing vessel Sountag, which arrived here to-day, reported that it had been fired upon for two and a half hours by the Baltic squadron off Dogger Bank, but was not hit."

The following is the story of Captain Hoohmer, of the Sountag:

"On October 21 we were on the Horns Reef fishing grounds on the west coast of Jutland. In the afternoon five large Russian ships passed, and in the evening nine more. At 8:30 (6 p. m.) we were lighted by a searchlight, and immediately afterward there fell the first shell in our neighborhood. The Russian vessels fired up to eighty shots a minute in all directions.

"We then observed another searchlight southward and shells bursting near the ships which were firing on us. We remained unhurt."

JAPS ADVANCE AND DRIVE THE RUSSIANS BACK

LONDON, Oct. 28.—A dispatch from Mukden says that the Japanese yesterday assumed the offensive on the east front and made a slight advance.

It is rumored that the Japanese have taken all the Russian positions at Erlagou, between Bunsiuan and Findlapo, on the road from Mukden to Benldsupiting, but the report has not been confirmed and looks improbable.

Another dispatch from Mukden, evidently bearing on the same matter, says there was an artillery fight on the night of October 26 on the north shore of the Sakhe River, directly south of Mukden.

The rumbling, which was heavy, was continued Thursday. The Russians are attacking the Japanese. If unsuccessful in fighting, it is believed, will continue up to the walls of Mukden.

CREDIT VERSION OF ROJESTVENSKY; WAIT FOR CZAR

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28.—There is no change in the situation here regarding the dispute with Great Britain. All the officials credit the version of the firing on the British fishing vessels sent by Admiral Rojestvensky, who is in command of the Russian Baltic fleet, and everything awaits the Czar's action.

CRANE'S OWNERS DENY CHARGE BY ROJESTVENSKY

HULL, Eng., Oct. 28.—The owners of the trawler Crane state that the statement by Admiral Rojestvensky that the vessel was absolutely in connection with the movements of the Japanese fleet can be proved beyond a doubt that neither torpedoes nor torpedo tubes were carried on board, and that the vicinity of the Gamecock fleet at the time of the outrage. The outrage remains very inexplicable, except on the theory that the Russians had a rumor on the brain.

NO JAP TORPEDO BOATS IN NORTH SEA SAYS HAYASHI

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister, after reading Admiral Rojestvensky's report reiterated his statement that it was impossible that any Japanese torpedo boats could have been where the Russian admiral thought them.

He declared that Rojestvensky's own statement of indiscriminate firing refuted such slight investigation proved that the Russian fleet was likely to endanger the safety of all neutral seas and make international law merely a farce.

BOSTON MAN TO WED COUSIN OF A. B. PARKER

William Prizer Wins Talented Relative of Democratic Candidate.

William Flaville Prizer, assistant manager for the Vacuum Oil Company, of No. 101 Milk street, has a chance of becoming cousin, by marriage, to a President of the United States, for he is engaged to Miss Grace Parker Lyon, of New York and Esopus, first cousin to Judge Alton B. Parker, the Democratic standard bearer. She is a charming young woman with a fine soprano voice and a talent for amateur theatricals. She is Judge Parker's favorite cousin, according to friends of the Parker and the Lyon families. Mr. Prizer has a baritone voice, and, like his betrothed, is an accomplished opera singer.

To their mutual talent in the operatic line they owe the meeting which began their acquaintance and resulted eventually in betrothal.

The meeting came two years ago in New York, when Miss Lyon was giving a charity benefit production of "Carmen." The leading soloist went down with a cold. Miss Lyon was distraught. Miss Lyon, who was to be soprano soloist, shared her anxiety. A friend, who knew Mr. Prizer and heard he was in the city, said to Miss Lyon:

"Why don't you invite Mr. Prizer to sing? He is socially acceptable and has an admirable baritone."

Mr. Prizer sang. He and Miss Lyon scored the most pronounced successes of their performances. Dan Cupid also scored a little hit in his own behalf. Mrs. Lyon was grateful to the amiable young man who saved her charity "Carmen." Miss Lyon was pleased with him, not only as a baritone but as an attractive individual.

From proving an acceptable singer, Mr. Prizer became so acceptable generally that his engagement to Miss Lyon is now announced.

Mr. Prizer is a tall, erect, good-looking young man, with much distance for politics. He is apparently highly content with pretty Miss Lyon, whether she is cousin to Judge Parker or not. But he is reluctant to have his love affairs given so much attention.

"Yes, it's true that I am engaged to Miss Lyon, and that she is Judge Parker's cousin," he said to-day. "I met her in New York when taking part in an amateur production of 'Carmen.' Miss Lyon's mother arranged the production for a charity benefit. We will be married next June. That's all I'm going to tell you about it."

STOESSEL TO CZAR, 'GOOD-BY FOREVER'

LONDON, Oct. 28.—A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram Company from Tokio says it is reported there that the Japanese have made another assault on Port Arthur.

During the assault a shell exploded in a magazine, and the city is said to be in flames. Continuing, the dispatch says that the Russian battleship Sevastopol was damaged and that a Russian steamer was sunk.

It is reported at Shanghai that General Stoessel has abandoned hope of holding the port against the attacks of the Japanese, and has sent a telegram to the Czar, saying:

"I now bid you good-by forever, Port Arthur will be my grave."

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28.—Viceroy Alexieff has announced his approaching departure from the Far East and is bidding farewell to the army and navy. He is to return here.

WAR SCARE OVER; STOCK PRICES SOAR

From a condition of semi-panic and demoralization the stock markets swung around to-day to the other extreme. The feeling that the probability of immediate hostilities between Great Britain and Russia had been averted led shorts to cover and gave the bulls fresh courage to push prices up to higher levels.

In Wall Street there was a sensational movement in the coal roads, with Lackawanna the leading figure. The price of this specialty rose in jumps sixteen points higher than at the close last night. Erie was heavily bought from London account and the upward movement in Ontario & Western was resumed, the price gaining two points up to mid-day. Delaware & Hudson spurted up six and one half per cent, and leading was stronger by over two per cent. Other departments were strong, but in a minor way. The movement in the dealers was reported based upon the expected freedom of an important deal affecting all these roads.

Prices of the Boston copper shares bounded upward. Calumet & Hecla gained ten additional points, carrying the price to 690, a higher level than had been reached since the boom of April. Amalgamated gained about 1½ per cent, and important gains were scored by Tribly, Copper Range, Atlantic, Michigan, Isle Royale and Utah. Lake copper sold at 12½ cents, the highest for months.

London buyers were distinctly more cheerful in tone.

Prominent Manufacturer Drops Dead From Uraemic Poisoning

Without Warning Mr. F. Tiffany is Swept Into Eternity by Kidney Disease.

Doctors Said It Need Not Have Been Had He Kept His Kidneys Healthy by Using Warner's Safe Cure.

In apparent perfect health, Mr. Tiffany, a well-to-do New England manufacturer of knit goods, had been attending to his business right along but suddenly he dropped dead. The case was announced later as an accumulation of uric acid in the blood—one of the last and most fatal stages of kidney disease.

Doctors claim that of late years there has been a startling increase in kidney troubles, and that one-third of all deaths results from this cause.

Thousands of men and women are afflicted and do not realize it is their kidneys until death is near.

If there is the tiniest quantity of uric acid in the blood it is an absolutely certain sign that your kidneys are diseased, because it is the duty of the kidneys to remove this deadly acid completely from the system, and, of course, if the kidneys are not healthy they cannot perform their work properly, and the longer they run without treatment the worse they become—kidney disease never cures itself.

Uric acid eats into the tissues and the diseased parts pass off in the urine. Therefore, it is very easy for every one to keep perfect watch over the kidneys by making the following

SIMPLE URIC ACID TEST.

Secure a urine glass or little earthen mixing bowl and fill it with urine from the kidneys; stand in a glass or bowl for 24 hours; if a sediment or settling forms, or if a cloudiness floats around in it, your kidneys have been overtaxed, and at any moment you may be prostrated by convulsions, Bright's disease, blood poisoning and death unless you at once arrest the trouble and put the kidneys with Warner's Safe Cure. Thousands of people who have used it and effectively restored the kidneys, liver, bladder and urinary organs to their original healthy condition, and keep them in shape to do the work that has given them to do.

Warner's Safe Cure has been used for over 40 years by leading physicians and in hospitals. It is a reliable remedy for pain, nervousness, and ailments without any bad after effect.

Make no mistake, there is only one medicine that will cure you, and it is Warner's Safe Cure. Sold by all druggists or direct, 50c. or $1.00 a bottle. Medical booklet with testimonials and doctor's advice free. Warner Safe Cure Co., Rochester, N. Y.

NEW YORK HAS A $1,000,000 FIRE; 1 DEAD

Two Steamers Are Damaged, Lighters, Piers and Warehouses Destroyed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—One man is dead, several are missing, and one million dollars' worth of property was destroyed in a fire to-day which burned two ocean-going steamships, several piers and warehouses of the Bush Terminal Company's stores in South Brooklyn.

The fire was the second in the stores within a week and is believed to have been of incendiary origin because the company desired to close certain streets.

The flames were discovered on the lighter Victor, loaded with cotton. The fire spread rapidly, and Policeman Patrick Cushing, after turning in an alarm, ran back to help fight the flames. He was caught at the end of the pier by the fire, and that was the last seen of him alive. His charred body was found later.

The new steamships Arizona of the American Hawaiian Steamship Company and the City di Palermo of the Italian line were soon ablaze. Whether all of the crews escaped is not known. Both the steamships were seriously damaged and several lighters were destroyed.

The piers destroyed were the largest in the city.

"ATTACKED"--ROJESTVENSKY'S OFFICIAL REPORT!

RUSSIAN ADMIRAL SAYS HE FIRED ON TORPEDO BOATS

BRITISH FURY INCREASED BY ROJESTVENSKY

WAR MEASURES CONTINUED

ST. PETERSBURG, OCT. 28.—The naval general staff publishes the following two despatches from Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky:

FIRST DESPATCH.

"The North Sea incident was caused by two torpedo boats advancing to attack without lights under cover of darkness against the vessel leading the detachment. When the detachment turned on its searchlights and opened fire the presence of several small steamboats resembling steam fishing boats was discovered. The detachment endeavored to spare these and ceased firing as soon as the torpedo boats were out of sight.

"The English press is indignant because a torpedo boat, left by the detachment on the spot until morning, did not aid the victims. Now, there was not a single torpedo boat near the detachment, and none was left behind; consequently the vessel remaining near the small steamboats was that torpedo boat which was not sunk, but only damaged. The detachment did not aid the little steamboats because we suspected them of complicity on account of their obstinately cutting into the order of the positions of our vessels. Several of them showed no lights, as others only very late."

SECOND DESPATCH.

"Having met several hundred fishing boats, the squadron showed them every consideration except when they were in company with foreign torpedo boats, of which one disappeared while the other, according to the fishers' own evidence, remained among them until morning. They supposed it was a Russian, and were indignant because it did not aid the victims, but it was foreign, and remained until morning, seeking the other torpedo boat, its consort, either to repair damage or through fear of betraying itself to those who were not its accomplices. If there were also on the spot fishermen imprudently dragged into the enterprise, I beg, in the name of the whole squadron, to express my sincere regret to the unfortunate victims of circumstances under which no warship, even in time of deep peace, could have acted otherwise."

REPORT DEEPENS MYSTERY OF THE TRAWLER OUTRAGE

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28.—The mystery of the trawler affair, instead of being cleared up by Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's report, appears to be deeper than ever.

The Russian admiral's explanation is hailed with the greatest satisfaction at the admiralty and elsewhere.

Public sentiment in both countries doubtless will demand the most searching investigation to establish the facts, and probably neither nation will be willing to accept the result of an ex-parte inquiry by the other.

The outcome probably will be a mixed tribunal of some sort. This at least is the suggestion of some of the cooler men here, as it is felt that only thus could a repetition of the Maine inquiry be avoided.

Popular excitement has reached a pitch unequalled since the beginning of the war. Public sympathy and confidence undoubtedly are with Admiral Rojestvensky, and should Russia choose to stand upon his version without further inquiry there is no question but such a course would be popular with the masses, who would be willing to back the government in the controversy to the utmost extremity.

It is most unlikely, however, that the government will adopt such a course.

It is much more probable that after the first flush of excitement has faded a middle way will be found whereby the facts can be established and the pride of both countries be maintained.

NO EVIDENCE TO SUPPORT RUSSIAN ADMIRAL'S STORY

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The new phase introduced into the situation by Rojestvensky's report was the almost exclusive subject of discussion at two conferences between Ambassador Benckendorff and Foreign Secretary Lansdowne.

In consequence the question of punishment is held in abeyance.

Lord Lansdowne, it is stated, said to Ambassador Benckendorff that while the circumstances reported by Rojestvensky were inconceivable to him, he quite understood that the Russian government was bound to take the word of its own admiral.

The opinion expressed at the foreign office was that it is ridiculous to suppose that two torpedo boats could lie unnoticed among the vessels of the fishing fleet.

There is no evidence, so far as the foreign office is concerned, to support Rojestvensky's contention. No opinion, however, could be expressed concerning the outcome or the method of solving the difficulty.

It is considered not improbable that the whole matter may be submitted to arbitration.

RUSSIANS DRUNK OR RATTLED, SAYS SIR GEORGE NEWNES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Sir George Newnes, a member of the British Parliament, called on President Roosevelt with his son. In commenting on the North Sea incident as he was leaving the White House he said:

"There are only two explanations that can be made with honor to Russia.

"One is that the Russians became badly rattled and feared a Japanese attack, and the other is that the Russians were drunk ing heavily and went to pieces."

HALIFAX FLEET IS ORDERED TO PREPARE FOR SEA

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 28.—There was great activity at the dockyards here last night. Orders were received to prepare the ships of the North American squadron for sea, and the Atlantic, the flagship, was hauled into the dockyard and the work of filling her bunkers at once commenced. Torpedoes on other ships were also set to work making them ready for sea. The British warships on the fishery protection service on the Newfoundland coast will join the squadron here.

Vice-Admiral Bosanquet, who commands the squadron, when interviewed, declined to make known the destination of his ships or whether they had been ordered to sail or not.

SWEDEN PROTESTS RUSSIAN ATTACK ON ALDEBARAN

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28.—A protest has been received from the Swedish government regarding the firing upon the steamer Aldebaran by a Russian cruiser on last Friday night.

HOME FLEET NOW ON THE WAY FOR GIBRALTAR

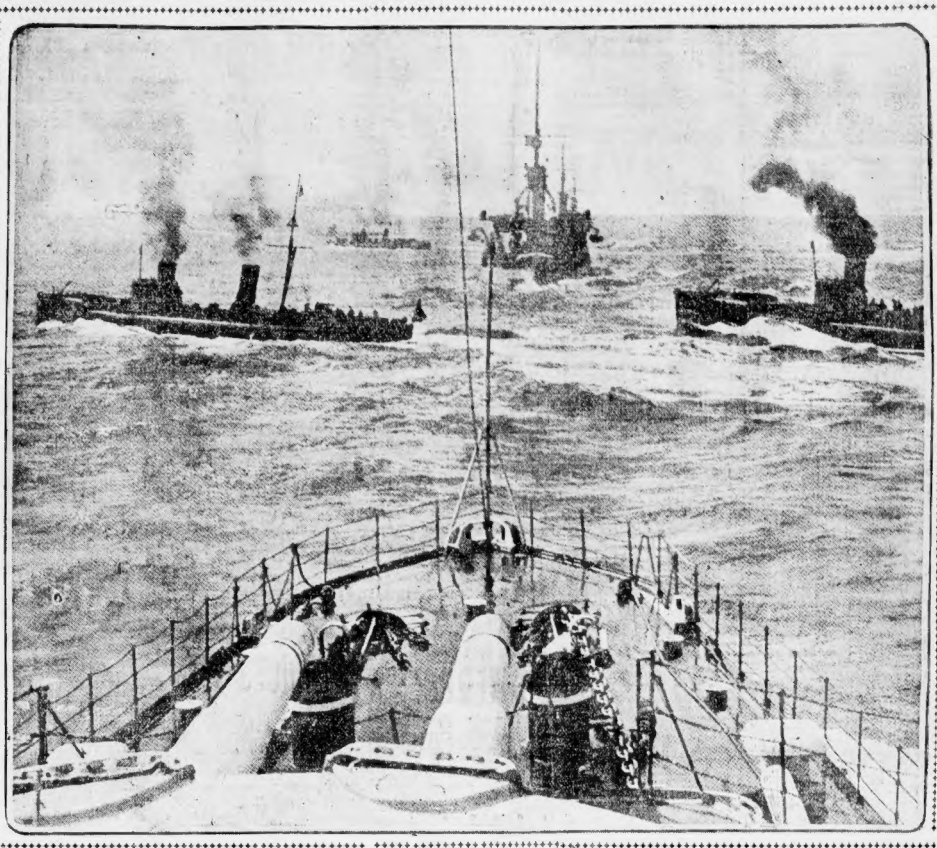
EDINBURG, Oct. 28.—The first division of the home fleet left the Firth of Forth this morning for Gibraltar, where the British vessels have been ordered to rendezvous.

HULL DISMISSES REPORT, UNWORTHY OF CONSIDERATION

LONDON, Oct. 28.—At Hull, where the simplicity of the funeral rites over the bodies of the victims was in strong contrast to the deep feeling displayed by the enormous concourse of public mourners, Admiral Rojestvensky's statements are dismissed as absolutely inaccurate and unworthy of the slightest consideration.

The fishermen are emphatic in declaring that it can be proved beyond doubt that there were no Japanese torpedo boats in the vicinity of Dogger Bank.

Further they point out that the Baltic squadron was thirty miles out of its proper course, with the result that the vessels steamed into the midst of the trawlers; and this is the only foundation, they assert, for the allegation that the transport Anatol was surrounded by unknown vessels.



BRITISH BATTLESHIPS AND TORPEDO BOATS IN ACTION DURING PRACTICE MANOEUVRES.

Showing how the speedy wasps of modern navies dart in and out of the heavy battleship lines. It was the attack of alleged Japanese torpedo boats that Rojestvensky says drew the Baltic fleet's fire and sent an English fishing trawler to the bottom.

BOSTON MAN TAKES BRIDE ON SICK BED

George H. Phelps, of Worcester and This City, Marries Miss Stephens, of Ithaca, N. Y.

SHE HAS TYPHOID FEVER

By Boston American Leased Wire.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Typhus fever in a serious form was not sufficient to stop the progress of true love in this city. With death confronting her, Miss Laura Jessie Stephens, daughter of Mrs. J. W. Stephens, a prominent young society woman, lay in bed and grasped the hand of her fiance, while the Rev. Charles F. McKnight spoke the words which made them man and wife.

George Harrison Phelps, of Worcester, Mass., the bridegroom, is the son of a prominent wholesale merchant, and is a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The wedding of the couple was announced for last evening at 8 o'clock, six months ago. The wedding took place as planned. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the minister, a physician, two nurses and the immediate relatives.

COAL BARONS CRY 'ENOUGH' IN HEARST SUIT

With Evidence Torn to Shreds by Facts and Figures, Trust Drops Defence.

FURTHER HEARINGS BRIEF

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Coal Trust has cried enough.

Its lawyers admitted, in the suit of William R. Hearst before the Interstate Commerce Commission, that it had no further evidence to offer in defence, and the case was brought to a close. It may be reopened in Washington November 29, in order to permit the introduction of certain statistical evidence, but in that case the hearing will be brief and of a purely technical character.

The testimony introduced yesterday by the defence was of a character so evidently unworthy of serious consideration as to cause the trust lawyers to realize the futility of continuing the line they had begun, and they abruptly closed. It had been supposed they would occupy several days in efforts to support the allegations they have made in the defence of their clients.

Notwithstanding the difficulties in the way of operating these roads, it was shown that 160 cars, containing thirty-two tons of coal each, can be brought from the mining regions to tidewater in eight trains, at a cost of $15.70 a train, or much less than a dollar a car for labor.

This bit of practical evidence overset and rendered absolutely valueless the masses of testimony placed before the commission by the trust lawyers. It demonstrated that no matter how much they might assert that the physical character of the country affected the transportation service the actual cost would be arrived at by a very simple process and be shown to be out of all proportion to the claims made by the trust lawyers.

It was the fact that the evidence that they were introducing was being riddled and torn to pieces in this fashion that caused the trust lawyers yesterday to decide to furnish no further evidence of this sort, but to go before the commission on what they had already succeeded in getting upon the records from such witnesses as Rose, Truesdale and Timmins, presidents of the various railroads, called to the stand by Mr. Shearn and cross-examined by the lawyers for the trust.

Arguments will be heard just before Christmas and the decision will undoubtedly be ready within a month or more after that. The commission's trip to the coal regions will be made on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

JORDAN TAKES 5 BLUES, 1 RED

The Eben D. Jordan stable of this city continues to win the cream of all the events at the Chicago Horse Show. The Jordan stable is leading in all events, with the Hobson stable second and the Vanderbilt aggregation third. Yesterday five firsts and one second out of five events were added to the list of Jordan ribbons. The classes won were the unicorn, the harness pony, the park horse, the special harness, which carries with it a special prize of $1,000, and the harness park class.

In the special harness class Mr. Jordan entered two ponies, one of which he drove himself, Lord Burleigh and Belfast. He was awarded second place, and his other tenth. Hildred and Plymouth Champion, took first prize.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Senator Joseph R. Hawley, of Connecticut, who is ill at his home here, is reported as being considerably improved this morning.

2,000 GIRLS GIVEN SCARE IN ROXBURY FIRE

Three Men Also Injured as Result of Blaze in Plant Shoe Factory.

DAMAGE IS NOT GREAT

The fall of an elevator in the Plant Shoe Factory at Bickford and Centre streets, Roxbury, injured three men and caused the explosion of a carboy of naphtha and rubber cement, resulting in a fire and considerable excitement among the 2,000 employes of the factory, shortly before 11 o'clock to-day.

There are about 2,000 girls in the different departments of the big factory, and a panic was averted only by the promptness of Superintendent John McGaffee in telephoning throughout the building that there was no danger. The exits on the first and second floors were thrown open, and the employes hurried from the building. All on the upper floors remained at work.

The elevator fell one story. The three men injured were Michael Saurer, Silvo Dipiedo and Martino Muscaritello, porters, who were carrying the naphtha and cement to the upper floors. Their injuries are not serious. The fire was slight, being confined to the elevator well, and was extinguished by the factory's own fire department, with chemical extinguishers, after damaging the structure about $25 worth.

BOGEY MAN FUN ON HALLOWE'EN

Hallowe'en will come next Monday night and in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN will be a Jack-o'-Lantern "cut-out," which no one who intends to observe the occasion as it has been observed from time immemorial should miss.

This Jack-o'-Lantern, a copy of which will be found in every BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, is of pasteboard and when cut out according to the plain directions that accompany it and filled with the necessary candle, will make a real "Bogey Man" such as delights the heart of all little ones and many older persons on the witching night. The picture of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN is particularly timely and is sure to prove a source of much pleasure to children. To be sure that your children will have one with which to celebrate, order a copy of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN from your newsdealer to-day.

ASLEEP, BEAT WIFE, LAY DOWN AND DIED

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Apparently dazed by a nightmare Salvatore Petrone jumped from a sofa on which he was sleeping at No. 110 East One Hundred and Thirtieth street, grabbed a razor strap and beat his wife insensible after chasing her through the building. Then he returned to his sofa and resumed his sleep. When the police tried to awaken him he was dead.

Mrs. Petrone was sleeping in bed with five children when her husband first attacked her.

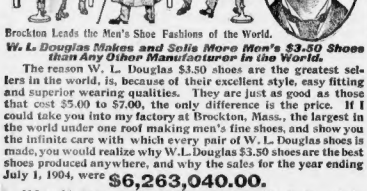
UNION MADE — FOR MEN — THE WORLD'S GREATEST SHOE VALUE



Brockton Leads the Men's Shoe Fashions of the World.

W. L. Douglas Makes and Sells More Men's $3.50 Shoes than Any Other Manufacturer in the World.

The reason W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the world, is, because of their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. They are just as good as those that cost $5.00 to $7.00, the only difference is the price. If I could take you into my factory at Brockton, Mass., the largest in the world under one roof making men's fine shoes, and show you the infinite care with which every pair of W. L. Douglas shoes is made, you would realize why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the best shoes produced anywhere, and why the sales for the year ending July 1, 1903, were $6,263,040.00.

If I could show you the difference between the shoes made in my factory and those of other makes and the high grade leathers used, you would understand why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater intrinsic value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day. W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom. Look for it — take no substitute. Sold by shoe dealers everywhere.

W. L. Douglas $2.00 and $1.75 Shoes for Boys.

W. L. Douglas uses Corona Colt skin in his $3.50 shoes. Corona Colt is conceded everywhere to be the finest Patent Leather yet produced.

DARTMOUTH JOINS PRANKS OF STUDENTS

Coaxed Into "Nightie" Parade and Then Speaks on a Fence.

LEAVES HANOVER TO-DAY

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 28.—The Earl of Dartmouth, who is on a visit to the college, is telling to-day with great glee of his unique experience of last night, when he was called upon to review a genuine American college "nightie" parade.

After he had applauded the white-robed marching column, the English lord was dragged down to the campus, boosted to the top of a fence, where he made an address supervative of the occasion. The Earl says that this hilarious, but harmonious, finish to the celebration that crowned his visit here will remain one of the most pleasant incidents in his memory of his visit to America.

Also a Bonfire.

The Earl dined with President Tucker, and afterward, while on his way to the hotel, the college students fired a huge pile of wood, saturated with oil. The driver of the carriage was urged by the earl to hurry to the hotel that he might witness the scene from his windows. With him were his wife, the Countess, and Lady Dorothy.

They had been at the windows but a short time when a long line of students appeared, clad in white. With cheers for the Earl, his wife and his daughter, college yells and hilarious comments on the occasion the procession marched past the hotel in the light of the enormous bonfire. The distinguished party in the window was convulsed with laughter at the sight.

After the parade had passed His Lordship was requested to come to the campus and witness the bonfire. He did not hesitate an instant, but went through the streets with the boys. No sooner had he appeared on the campus than the whole crowd began to yell:

"What's the matter with Lord Dartmouth?"

"He's all right!"

"Speech, speech!"

Lifted on a Fence.

The representative of English aristocratic nobility hesitated when called on for a speech, but the boys would not let him go. They insisted until there was no escape, and the Earl said that he would speak to them.

"But where shall I stand?" he asked.

He was promptly seized by the arms and led to the senior fence. For a minute he looked at the fence in bewilderment. Then he saw the point and immediately mounted the rails and addressed the crowd. After his speech he was escorted back to his hotel, and with another rousing cheer the boys went to their rooms.

That was the last tribute the boys paid to the distinguished Englishman. He leaves with his party for Washington, D. C., today. On the way a stop of several days will be made at Avon, Ct., to visit friends. The party will sail for England November 8 from New York.

BUILDERS MAKE FIRST MOVE FOR THE 'OPEN SHOP'

Employers Issue Cards of Registration in Battle Against Unions.

MEN MAY NOT FILL THEM

At almost every building in process of erection in Boston groups of workmen gathered to-day and discussed the cards that have been distributed by the master builders for the registration of laborers. It is doubtful if in a single instance a voice was raised in commendation of the scheme. On the other hand practically all the union workmen believe that the scheme is the opening of hostilities that will lead eventually to one of the most extensive and hardest fought labor wars that has ever afflicted Boston.

Every workman employed by a member of the Master Builders' Association has received a slip to sign. The slip is termed by the workmen as "the Bertillon system of measurement and registration." The slips are headed "The Master Builders' Association of the City of Boston—Workman's Registration Roll," and reads as follows:

The undersigned, having been recommended for registration on the rolls of the Master Builders' Association as a journeyman by

1—I am —— years of age.

2—My place of birth was ——.

3—I have been a resident in this country —— years.

5—Served apprenticeship with ——.

5—Have been working as journeyman —— years.

6—My last employer was ——.

In consideration of my registration I hereby agree that I will not allow any affiliation I may have with any other organization to operate to the injury of the business of members of the Master Builders' Association.

For a long time the master builders have been working to devise a scheme whereby they could hold their workmen without recognition of union labor conditions. They have openly declared themselves in favor of the "open shop." Secretary Sayward, of the association, does not hesitate to state that he favors the move and has had it under consideration for a long time, and the union leaders by the entire matter at his door.

Labor union officials said that in nearly every building trades union the sick and death benefits are a feature and that if the members sign the master builders' slips they break their obligations to the union and thereby lose all. The labor men generally believe that all men engaged in the industry will refuse to fill out the slip.

FILIPINO HAS NO RIGHT TO VOTE

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 28.—An odd question was revived yesterday when J. E. Lagdoneo, a young Filipino now studying law at Yale, claiming to be an American citizen, was refused the right to register and vote. His request was thrown out on the ground that he is an alien and comes from a foreign country. Lagdoneo is a cousin of Aguinaldo.

RICH FAMILY'S SCION A SUICIDE; TRIED TO SLAY

Homer Bray, of Pawtucket, Long Missing, Attempted Robbery.

HAS RELATIVES IN BOSTON

Special to the Boston American.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Oct. 28.—The whereabouts of Homer S. Bray, son of a prominent and wealthy family of this city, has been ascertained by the rough man's attempt to kill a former employe and his suicide in Montreal. Bray has been missing from his home for nearly sixteen months, and police department and private detectives were unable to locate him. His disappearance worried his father, Allen F. Bray, a prominent hardware merchant of Pawtucket, to death and he was found dead in the bathroom at his home, No. 339 High street, in April.

Bray gave the name of Whitefield, his mother's maiden name, while in Montreal. He was employed for several months by D. Drysdale in the Canadian city, and was discharged about a week ago. Later he called on his former employer and asked to see him alone. The two went upstairs and were walking across the room when Bray drew a revolver and pressing to Drysdale's heart said:

Demanded Money.

"I am desperate. I must have some money, or if you refuse to sign a check I'll use this and kill you."

Drysdale was terrified and promised the money or a check if Bray would go downstairs with him. They started for the office of the store, and when they reached the door Drysdale tried to escape. Bray shot at him instantly, and missed him. Then he turned the revolver on himself and fired one shot through his brain. He fell dead.

Bray was an omnivorous reader. In his room were found a large number of books and the last thing he read was Dante's "Purgatory." It is believed that the horrors of this book affected his brain. Bray was a man twenty-two years of age, and his moral character had hitherto been excellent.

Wealthy Connections.

Young Bray had prominent and wealthy connections in this city and Fall River. He was a student in the Central Falls High School and was the editor of the class day school paper, until his disappearance in June, 1902. He left a note saying that there was something wrong with his stomach, the paper says, but investigations proved that there was unimportant errors.

He was a brilliant student and had a host of friends. His father made every possible effort to locate the boy and his death was directly attributable to the grief and mysterious disappearance. The death of the father, and now the tragic end of the son, have been hard blows to the family.

CONFIDE IN A WOMAN

When it is evident that women need competent advice about their health, is it not well for them to know how to secure it? Tell your story without reservation to Mrs. Pinkham; she never breaks confidence, and her advice is the best in the world. Miss Mecum's two letters show how helpful it is.

[PUBLISHED BY SPECIAL PERMISSION.]

First letter.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: I have read so much about your great kindness to suffering women that I thought I would write and tell you of my troubles. In the first place, I have a blood disease which the doctors call dry eczema. I have taken a great deal of medicine but received no permanent benefit, so thought I would try your medicine. Menses are irregular, and I am troubled with leucorrhœa. Bowels are constipated; sometimes have sharp pains; cannot sleep at night; have such sinking spells I cannot be still. Suffer with pain in lower part of back, in my side under left breast, and through my chest; also troubled with shortness of breath and dizziness. Please give me your advice.

MISS MARY MECUM, LIMA, IND.

Second letter.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: When I wrote to you some time ago I was feeling very miserable. I followed the advice you gave me, and must say that I think your remedies are the greatest remedies on earth. I took both Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and they have done me more good than anything I ever took. I cannot express my thankfulness to you, and I shall always recommend your medicine to others.

MISS MARY MECUM, LIMA, IND.

Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass. She advises women free. Miss Della M. Hittle has given permission to print her two letters, showing how easy it is to get the right help.

First letter.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: I have noticed your advertisement and feel that your medicine will do me some good. I have been suffering several months with womb trouble. The womb swells and it feels as if something was gathering on each side. Some days I can hardly be on my feet at all. It makes me very nervous, and I also have a discharge of leucorrhœa. I am getting tired of suffering so much and want to try your medicine. Please advise me and answer as soon as possible. MISS DELLA M. HITTLE, MILTON, IND.

Second letter.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: Words cannot express my gratitude for the good I have derived from the use of your remedies. I suffered with congestion of the ovaries and inflammation of the womb. I was completely run down and my condition was very serious. After reading of the good your medicine had done for others I concluded to write to you for advice. Upon receiving your reply I took a course of your medicine and am now well. The Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound also cured me of the awful headaches I was subject to. I shall never be without your medicine. I cheerfully recommend it to all and firmly believe it capable of curing any female sickness.

MISS DELLA M. HITTLE, MILTON, IND.

When you go to your druggist for Mrs. Pinkham's remedies do not let him persuade you to try something "just as good." He is merely trying to make a larger profit. The medicine that surely cures women is LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

Sour Stomach

I used Cascarets and feel like a new man. I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia and sour stomach for the last two years. I have been taking medicine and other drugs, but would find no relief only for a short time. I will recommend Cascarets to my friends as the only thing for indigestion and sour stomach and to keep the bowels in good condition. They are very good.—Harry Buckley, Marsh Chunk, Pa.

HARVARD SHOULD PROVE THE WINNER

SO ROBERT KERNAN SAYS

BY ROBERT P. KERNAN,
Captain Harvard 1902 Eleven.

For the time being there is only one topic of conversation in the football circles at Harvard, and that is the Pennsylvania game. Coaches and players, graduates and undergraduates have stopped wondering what men will be the final choice for the end positions in the Yale game, whether Melcc or Greene will play right tackle, or whether the Harvard line will outplay the 'Pitt forwards, and all are attempting to predict the score of to-morrow's contest.

In attempting to pick the winner there are a few facts which will guide one in making a final choice. The Harvard men are undoubtedly heavier and physically stronger than the Pennsylvania players. In past years the players on Harvard eleven have had more knowledge as to individual playing than their Pennsylvania rivals, and during the last few seasons the Harvard style of attack has been the stronger.

Harvard's Handicap.

On the other hand Captain Hurley has been able to line up his first team only on a few occasions, owing to the great number of injuries, whereas the Pennsylvania men have received a thorough drilling in team play. In the punting game Reynolds will prove far superior to any punter on the Harvard eleven.

In comparing the players man for man, it appears fair in the majority of positions Harvard has the advantage of better individual players. At center Parkinson should have no difficulty in handling Torrey. The former is much heavier and far more aggressive than his opponent.

Plekarski and Squires should break about even, though the Pennsylvania player has had several years' experience at guard, while Squires was moved from tackle only a month ago. Ziegler, the other guard, is one of Pennsylvania's strong players, but he will be forced to put up a wonderful game in order to outplay the freshman, Parker. Should Parker be allowed to leave the game, the visitor will find a much easier proposition in either White or Mc. Fading. White deserves a great deal of credit for the improvement he has made in the last two weeks, but is still an unsatisfactory lineman.

Oveson's Strong Game.

Butkievicz, the first fullback, will face Oveson, and if the Harvard man plays up to his game will probably get the worst of the encounter. Oveson plays a strong defensive game and adds greatly to his team's ability to advance the ball. Brill and Lawson will fight it out on the other side of the line, although Lawson is an extremely good player, the former should outplay his opponent. Inexperience and a tendency to go to sleep are Brill's great weaknesses.

The ends on both teams are players of everyday ability. Filley would be a good man, but needs watching. This he has been unable to get, so far, owing to his duties at the bandstand.

At quarterback, Stevenson is much better than Kernan, in fact, is one of the best quarterbacks in the country, and will give the Harvard end a great deal of trouble through his speed in running back kicks.

Hurley and Sperry outclass completely the opposing halfbacks, the Harvard captain being the best all-round player on the field. Reynolds is valuable for his kicking, but cannot be considered a reliable ground gainer.

Smith and Mills carry the ball equally well, but the former is a much better defensive back, and interferes more effectively than the Harvard fullback.

Consequently it seems that Harvard has enough points in her favor to win the game, although it is doubtful if the Cambridge eleven runs up a large score.

One great reason for believing that Harvard will win is that the team has a well-balanced line, there is no weak spot in the chain, whereas this cannot be said of the Pennsylvania team.

Pennsylvania will undoubtedly have more team play, and will outkick Harvard, but it is doubtful if these advantages alone will win a championship game.

TAYLOR OF THE PENNSYLVANIA SQUAD

Taylor is the substitute centre and should anything happen to Torrey or Williams in the game with Harvard, he will be given a chance to show his skill. He is regarded as a very good all around player.

THINKS CLARKSON WILL BE A COMER

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Manager Griffith, of the New York American League baseball team, will leave shortly for his ranch in Montana, where he will put in several weeks, riding hard, dodging frostbite and rustoring young Walter Clarkson, who goes too, with him. "Clarkson will be a great deal better pitcher next season," says Griff. "He's had his baptism of fire, and next year will have more confidence. He's got everything else. He's been up against Lajoie and the other killers, knows now that they're only human and won't be shaking in his shoes when he faces them.

"My pitching staff will be all right with Chesbro, Powell, Orth, Puttmann, Clark son, Newton and Holycross. Holycross is a new man from the West. Newton's ability is well known. I brought him from California, and while there is some hitch over the draft, I have a clear case and expect the National Commission to award Newton to me. Puttmann is no longer an experiment. His work toward the last of the season made his reputation. He pitched a game in Chicago before an antagonistic crowd that convinced me he was the real stuff.

"I have been criticised for not using more of my pitchers last season instead of working three of them most of the time, but the fact is Chesbro, Powell and Orth were big, strong fellows, plenty able to do the work, and they were anxious to do it, too. We lost the pennant, not because of the pitchers, but because of errors the last two days. I thought all season we would win the pennant, and we ought to have won it. I haven't got over the disappointment yet.

"I guess we'll stand pat on the team, except that we will make any trades that look beneficial. I intend to give Chase, the California first baseman we drafted, a thorough trial. Chase was highly recommended by Bill Lange and George Van Haltren. He is a six-footer, only nineteen years old and a collegian.

Griffith declares it is ridiculous to talk about a series for the world's championship not played in the spring. The time for it, he says, is in the fall, when players are in condition. "Another thing," said the crack manager, "they may talk about the split ball all they want to, Chesbro's use of it they can prevent a pitcher from using it. Chesbro is the great pitcher of it, and he is the only pitcher who can make it both drop and break outwardly. But even without it he is still the white-haired boy of all the batters."

Quakers Take All Bets When Odds Are Offered

Special to the Boston American.

WOODLAND PARK HOTEL, Auburndale, Oct. 28.—The football squad of the University of Pennsylvania, braced up by the New England atmosphere, donned their togs at 10 o'clock this morning and went to the Woodland Park golf links, situated about one mile from the hotel, where secret signal work was indulged in by two elevens for about twenty minutes. The teams ran the signals in a fast, snappy manner, although very much handicapped by the somewhat soggy condition of the ground.

After the signal work Coaches Williams, Wallace, McCracken and Dickson took the squad for a two-mile cross-country run. All finished in a somewhat exhausted condition. After a brisk rub the men felt none the worse for their strenuous motions of work.

Coach Williams's Talk.

After lunch Coach Williams gave a talk, emphasizing the fact that a great deal depends, both physically and mentally, on the condition of each player in regards to playing Harvard a clean game.

In the afternoon thirty minutes were spent in signal practice, practically the same as indulged in the forenoon. It was the final tuning up for the game before the great contest. To-morrow the players will rest until 1 o'clock, when they will leave for Cambridge.

Shortly after 10 o'clock Coaches "Nate" Polwell, Jack Hodges and McCloskey arrived at the hotel from New York.

Coach Williams has not decided yet on the final makeup of his team. He said this morning, however, that Captain Torrey will play centre. Yesterday he thought that Torrey would start the game at tackle, while Williams would cover the keystone position and Rutkewicz would remain on the bench. However, Rutkewicz will be back at his old position, while Torrey will play centre.

Coach Williams also said that Drake will begin the game at left end, instead of Weed, but left halfback is still undecided. Shoplo is a better man in the formations and on the defense than is Reynolds, who when at his best, is the Quaker's most effective ground gainer. Not until to-morrow, when Williams sees the condition of the field and makes up his mind what style of game Pennsylvania will play, will the coach decide which man he will send into the first line-up.

One of the most mutual features of the coming game is the readiness with which Harvard men are offering odds on their team winning. Heretofore, no matter how confident was Harvard's superiority, the backers of the Crimson seldom gave more than even money and frequently hated to do that. But this year all is changed, and betting is brisk, not so much in Boston as in Philadelphia.

"Two thousand five hundred dollars was sent down to Philadelphia Wednesday to be offered at odds of five to four on Harvard, and even money that the Crimson would win by a greater margin than ten points," said Coach Fogwell to a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day.

"There are a few U. of P. students who believe that our team will win, but they do not number more than a dozen, and such odds are offered. Every event of Harvard's money was taken up in a hurry and more asked for.

"I expect that nearly 800 students will come from Philadelphia to see the game. They will probably arrive on the Special which leaves New York to-night, and which is due in Boston early to-morrow morning."

GANS NOT DOWN TO WEIGHT, TIPPING BEAM AT 136 TO-DAY

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—Referee Graney made an official visit to the camp of Gans to-day while Joe was out on the road. When the latter returned he seemed to be very tired and possibly a little disgusted with the hardships imposed by the life pugilistic, but he brightened considerably after Graney had talked to him in a fatherly way.

"I hope you are satisfied that you will receive fair treatment in your contest with Britt," said Graney.

"Well, I will tell you, Mr. Graney," replied Gans, "I am a colored man, and I have a feeling that I always have a shade the worst of it when my opponent is a white man. I don't think you would willfully do me an injury, but before the referee matter was settled some of my friends made me think you would be influenced by the gallery when the show began. Now, really, I was uneasy when I heard that, as it stands to reason the gallery will root for Britt, as he is not only a pugilist, but a white boy."

Graney thought for a moment and then said:

"Are you thoroughly satisfied on all points now? If not, there is plenty of time to choose another referee. I will step out and out if you say."

Gans hastened to assure Graney that all his fears had vanished.

"I believe you will give me all that is coming to me," said he. "Although there may have been arguments over your decision, as there are on every referee's decision at times, I want to say that I honestly believe you have always done what you thought was right."

"And I will do it in this case," said Graney. "I have a business interest here and propose to live here all my life, and I am not likely to give any decision that I could not stand by in the years to come."

"Now," continued Graney, "what I came to see you about principally to-day is the rules under which you are to fight. I want to get your version of them and then I will ask what Britt thinks. We will then be able to arrive at a mutual understanding before we get into the ring."

"You have referee for me a couple of times and you know the way I fight," said Gans. "Britt and I have signed to fight straight Queensbury rules, and that means that I will be allowed to box the way I always box. My understanding of the rules is that we are allowed to mix it in the clinches as long as one hand and one arm are free. We are supposed to protect ourselves at times and break when ordered to do so."

When Gans took the scales to-day he showed up with 136 pounds of bone and sinew.

OLD PETER SOON TOOK THE COUNT

Special to the Boston American.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct., 28.—It was the same old story for the off-defeated Peter Maher. Peter essayed to go six rounds with Fred Cooley, of Chicago, in the windup at the Broadway A. C., but before the first round was over Peter was laying on the floor from the effect of a rather shady punch for a knockout blow; in fact, many of the spectators thought the same time Irish champion quit, and many voiced their sentiment in low, language.

Peter started out all right by getting a stiff left hander on Cooley's head, and he followed this with a right hand swipe that caused Fred's eyes to blink. That was about Peter's limit. Cooley played for Maher's well-proportioned stomach, and as they came to a clinch he drove his right a few inches above Peter's belt with terrific force. That punch made Peter gasp, but he fought in the clinch and then soaked Cooley on the ear with a right as they broke.

The next mix-up was as surprising as it was sudden. Cooley made some sort of a bluff, and the next second Maher went to the floor with a thud from a right hand wallop on the jaw.

Peter took all that was coming to him, and he scrambled on his feet with a sailor lunge. Cooley went right after his man, and in a short mix-up Peter again went to the canvas for the count.

NEW CLASS IN MINOR LEAGUES

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—When the delegates of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues meet again it will be in San Francisco.

A new class, to be known as AA, is planned, and will include the Eastern, American Association and Pacific Coast. In this year the fees for drafting players by major from minor leagues has been $750, $500, $300, $250. If the new class is approved by the National Commission the fees will be increased to $1,500, $1,000, $750, $500, $400.

YALE PRIMED FOR COLUMBIA GAME

Special to the Boston American.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 28.—The Yale football team will leave here this evening for New York fit as fiddlers. Not a man has a bruise worth mentioning and a team has not been sent from here better conditioned for a big match for years. The "Yale luck" of former days has come back after an absence of many years as far as luck of injuries during the season is concerned, and there seems no room to fear that Yale will go into the championship game with any of her veterans bruised.

Kicking Game Expected.

Every indication points to the bitterest kicking game between Yale and Columbia Saturday that has been witnessed in years. Not since Yale adopted the tackles back play in 1900 has the eleven put up a punting game in her big contests and its success against Columbia to-morrow will decide whether it will be tried against Princeton and Harvard. It is the star punters developed by Ex-Captain Brink Thorne, Watt and Veeder, who are responsible for Yale's change. If Columbia does not take up the challenge Yale gives to-morrow, and make it a punting duel, the Yale crowd will be bitterly disappointed, for a kicking game is the most picturesque football on the gridiron and Yale is primed for a battle from the start of play till the referee's whistle sounds "time."

Neal Hasn't Cinched End.

Neal has not fairly won out right end, which he and Kinsley have battled for all the week. He was given a rest yesterday, as he is well up toward an edge. Bloomer was also laid off yesterday. Bloomer will be Yale's mainstay in the ball-carrying line to-morrow.

The varsity eleven and scrubs went to the Yale field to-day, but they did not scrimmage. They had a kicking drill and then went through signal practice. The most of the work was secret. Although it was stated this morning that the makeup of the eleven to face Columbia would not be officially announced till to-night, there seems no doubt that it will be as follows: Left end, Sheviin; left tackle, Bloomer; left guard, Kinsley; center, Burnham; right guard, Tripp; right tackle, Captain Hogan; right end, Neal; quarterback, Rockwell; left halfback, Hoyt; right halfback, S. Morse; fullback, Metz.

The second string of backs, who will go in during the second half, will be: Quarterback, Richardson; left halfback, Veeder; right halfback, Stevenson; fullback, Cowley. No changes will be made in the line during the game except in case of accidents, as Yale say will be taken as first substitute tackle, Flanders first substitute guard, and Erwin first substitute centre.

FAST ONES IN HANDICAP

Special to the Boston American.

JAMAICA RACE TRACK, Oct. 28.—The Surprise for two-year-olds was the stake event at Jamaica this afternoon. It was a mile and a sixteenth, and from the eight in the list of twenty-four there were seven sent out overnight, and there was a good contest under the weight arrangement.

A handicap for all ages, and at a mile and sixteenth, was of more promise in the class of the horses engaged, and was really the feature of the afternoon.

With the exception of these two races there was little of class in the programme, it being made up of three selling races and a dash for maiden fillies of the two-year-old division.

BOXING BOUTS UNDER BAN

BROCKTON, Oct. 28.—Sporting men are wealthy in the city council, and the anti-Hedrick will permit no more boxing bouts in this city for the present, if not longer.

The contests here have been conducted in the best manner, and the crowds that have always been orderly. Sporting men say that as no good reason why the boxing should be stopped, and will make an effort to go higher up for a permit.

HELD BASKET BALL MEETING.

It was decided at the meeting of the Boston Interscholastic Baseball Ball Association that the referees in the games shall be the assistants of the physical director of the Boston schools. The eligibility rules of the organization will be those adopted by the New England Masters' Association.

WILL TELL YOU WHICH WAY TO VOTE ON NOV. 8

Douglas and Bates Will Address Voters in Next Sunday's Boston American.

OTHER UNIQUE FEATURES

Politics are uppermost in the minds of men in these sere Autumn days. The combination of State and National campaigns affords every male adult an opportunity to express himself by the old familiar methods—arguments, wagers, fist fights or contributions to the campaign funds.

Every one, of course, is interested in what the candidates have to say, particularly are those in Massachusetts interested in what the two candidates for Governor—W. L. Douglas on the Democratic side and John L. Bates on the Republican—think of the issue.

In next Sunday's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN Mr. Douglas and Governor Bates each contribute a signed article of exceptional interest on the campaign. Mr. Douglas tells in his customary vigorous and homely style why you should vote the Democratic way. Governor Bates advances the Republican argument. Both articles are written exclusively for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Great Football Game.

Even the political combination of a State and National campaign has not that in it which will diminish interest in football, particularly in Boston, with the Harvard eleven showing such a marvellous resemblance, in irresistible forward action, to a group of steam ploughs. On Saturday these eleven men of brawn from Cambridge expect to plough up and perhaps harrow over Pennsylvania's choicest garden of athletes. It will be a great game, and the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN will have the greatest story of it, written by experts and illustrated by photographs, taken on the field and as remarkable for action as the game itself.

Football enthusiasts get up early Sunday morning, and for that reason it will be wise to leave an advance order with your newsdealer to reserve a copy of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN for you, in case you want to snooze an extra hour or two Sunday morning.

The magazine section and the comic section of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN have already become household features throughout New England. Everybody knows and laughs at the Katzenjammer Kids, Little Jimmy, Katy, Happy Hooligan and his remarkable brother, and the other delightful characters which Opper, Swinnerton, Dirks, Howarth and other famous artists have made a part of our national humor. All of these are brought together again, furnishing more varied entertainment than a vaudeville show.

Great Sunday Magazine.

The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN'S Magazine Section is the literary and artistic wonder of newspaper making. No monthly magazine offers a more varied and interesting collection of features. Here are the titles of some of the beautifully illustrated feature stories which appear in the magazine section of next Sunday's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN:

"A Fare That Won $5,000,000," "Chopping Off the Heads of 30,000 Persons," "The Romance of an Auto Smash-up," "A Murder Trial Like One of Shakespeare's Tragedies," "How Love Found the Way," "Whitewash Breaks Up a Wedding," "Secrets of House Heating," and a score of others.

Besides these there is the great gold slipper contest that begins next Sunday, and may be that the gold slipper is destined for you. It is Cinderella time right up to date, and every woman should get a copy of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN for, who knows, she may be the winner in the unique contest.

As to Wedding Outfits.

Mrs. Josefa Osborn, creator of fashions for the fashionable women of America, writes exclusively for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN of "Wedding Outfits." Ella Wheeler Wilcox contributes a brilliant article on "Optimism Is Out of Date." Belle Blitz writes of "The Woman He Didn't Marry."

Then there is the jack-o'-lantern cut out for children. It comes just in time for Hallowe'en parties, and is really a great improvement on the old pumpkin. Every boy and girl will want one. And your place waits for the fifty-cent sheet of puzzle free. You may miss all of these interesting things if you fail to leave an order in advance with your newsdealer for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. Its price is two cents everywhere.

LYNN UNIONS QUARREL OVER A WOMAN WAITER

MRS. JENNIE GIRARD

CENTRE OF LYNN UNION CONFLICT.

Quarrel has arisen over Mrs. Girard's discharge from a union restaurant for not joining organization.

City Labor Circles and Restaurant Patrons Interested in Unique Conflict in Shoe City.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LYNN, Oct. 28.—The discharge of Mrs. Jennie Girard, who has been a waitress at Wyman's restaurant in this place for twelve years because she would not join the Waiters' Union, on the ground that she was already a member of the Lady Stitchers' Union, has caused the latter organization to declare unfair restaurants displaying a union sign.

A committee from the Lady Stitchers is to-day trying to locate a non-union restaurant that they may patronize, and in case it is not found it is declared a new eating place will be opened under the auspices of the Knights of Labor.

At a special meeting of the executive board of the Ladies' Stitchers' Union, 2,500 K. of L., it was voted unanimously to withdraw all patronage from restaurants displaying the union card. In the meantime the Waiters' Union has appointed a committee to wait on the Lady Stitchers and try to adjust the matter.

Caused by Discharge.

The trouble is the aftermath of the action taken by the hotel and restaurant employes, who three weeks ago caused Mrs. Girard to be discharged or join the Waiters' Union. Mrs. Girard claimed she had an understanding with the management of Wyman's restaurant to the effect that she should not be compelled to join till the place was thoroughly organized. The Knights of Labor assert that there are other employes in the place who are not members of the union and that, therefore, discrimination has been shown in the case of Mrs. Girard. The Knights of Labor feel called upon to act on the matter, as Mrs. Girard has been very prominent in the recent trouble between that order and the Boot and Shoe Workers.

As the Cutters' Union, K. of L., numbers something like a thousand members and the lady stitchers about 500, the trouble will be far reaching in effect, and will seriously interfere with the restaurant business.

The Knights of Labor have many sympathizers in this city, and in the present labor war waged in Lynn they were upheld by the Grain Cutters' Union, an organization 500 strong. It is expected they will sympathize with them in this case.

Loss of Patronage Heavy.

The cutters and the lady stitchers are considered the best class of work in shoe factories, and the loss of their patronage will be correspondingly heavy to proprietors of eating houses. The outcome of the struggle is watched closely by Lynn citizens, who have in mind the recent fight between the Knights of Labor and Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, which, it was claimed, caused the loss to Lynn shoe manufacturers of thousands of dollars. The waiters are well organized.

Manager Corning of the restaurant said: "I had to discharge Mrs. Girard or let thirty union waiters go."

VESSELS LOST IN HURRICANE

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 28.—News received by private cable here from Caymanla Islands, says a severe hurricane visited the Islands on October 23 and 24, doing great damage to crops and property.

Vessels in the harbor at Georgetown were blown to sea by a northwest wind of terrific velocity and many vessels belonging to the island have not been heard from. The sloop Goldfish and the Jamaican vessel Excelsior are supposed to have been lost. It is not known if the crews of the vessels perished.

The schooners Defender and Albatross have not been heard from, and it is thought they have been wrecked.

Chapter Lxxvi.

For Money Down.

"You have come at last, George!" Violet rose from the low chair drawn close to the fire, and, as soon as the door was shut behind the footman, kissed Tweedledum with some effusion. "I have waited for you so anxiously these days—these long, cold days! Don't you love me as you did?"

She drew him to the fire and busied herself pouring him out some tea. "I know you'd prefer whiskey," she said, with a slight laugh, "but I can't allow you to take it at this time of day, I really can't."

Violet hardly appreciated that this was an example of one of the little "society" mannerisms which had destroyed the man's love for her.

"Why do you neglect me now?" she asked after a few seconds' pause. She lay back lazily in her chair and the lids dropped over her slanting eyes. "Ever since I went to Italy, George, you have not been the same to me."

"Perhaps," he returned, with an attempt at banter, "perhaps some of the fault is on your side, Vi. You had a lot to tell me about the Count, you know, and how attentive he was——"

"Oh, are you jealous?" There was evident delight in her voice. "If you're jealous I'm sure you care for me. The Count is nothing to me—really."

"Of course, I'm jealous." Tweedledum thought it just as well to humor her. Had he not to ask a favor?

"I care for you just as much as ever, Vi," he went on, "but the fact is I've been a good deal bothered lately. My affairs have gone all horribly muddled, and it's that which keeps me away from you——"

"Money?" she asked, with a slight frown, which seemed to imply that he never came to her unless it were to ask for money.

"As usual," he returned, "it's all very well for you, Vi"—his voice had that touch of coarseness which always quelled her—"with everything you want. You should not forget that I helped you to it, though, and if it were not for that I shouldn't think of asking you for a penny." As usual, he lied glibly. "You know that I have no means and that I am a born gambler——"

"It's just because I know that that I won't let you control the capital," she said. "Surely, George, I'm wise—you know that I am wise." She put the question almost plaintively.

He shrugged his broad shoulders. It was quite true that her check book was at his disposal, or had been so till quite recently.

"I do want some money now," he said, "badly."

She came and knelt by his side. He thought she was really too old for such a childish attitude.

"George," she said, "do you know that I am a little jealous, too?" He was very well aware of the fact. "I'm ready to give you anything you want, dear, but you must tell me that it is really for yourself. I won't pay you any more for——"

"It is for myself," Tweedledum stooped and kissed the white forehead. "I promise you."

"You do love me, George? It—it isn't only for money that you come to me?"

"Of course not, Vi. What a question!"

She sprang to her feet. "Then of course you shall have it, dear," she cried. "How much?"

Tweedledum had hardly expected such easy acquiescence, and was scarcely prepared with his answer. So, while affecting to stroke Violet's heavy tresses, he made a rapid mental summary of the situation. Lilian wanted ten thousand—would certainly not be content with less. That, by itself, was a large sum to ask for. But while he was about it he might just as well get something for himself—say five thousand—or why not ten thousand? Violet seemed in an unusually generous mood. She had carped at him of late when he had asked for anything.

"The fact is," he said at last, "it's rather a lot I want this time. I assure you, Vi, that's what has been keeping me away from you. I didn't want to bother you with my troubles. But I've got a lot of beastly creditors who are impertinent enough to ask to be paid, and besides, there are one or two debts of honor which, of course, must be settled." Tweedledum assumed a virtuous expression as if his honor were of the greatest moment to him. To himself he thought how strange it was that this woman who had once known his character so well, who had, indeed, lent herself to the cruel appropriation of Pangbourne's patrimony at his suggestion, should now set him on a pedestal of her own imagining. He felt that he had to act to her. It was once more the fault of society, into which, after her marriage, she had so readily drawn herself.

"How much, dear?" repeated Violet.

"Fifteen thousand should clear me," he said, with a certain hesitation. He was prepared to knock off five thousand if Lady Violet resented his request very strenuously.

But she arose at once and crossed to her little writing desk. "It's a large sum, George," she said, "but as it is for your own debts you shall have it. I will write you a check at once."

As she wrote Tweedledum sat silent, marveling at this remarkable change of front, and inwardly cursing himself for not having asked for $20,000.

OH, YES, HE'D SAVE HER
"What if the boat should capsize, Mr. Chillest"
"Well, you would have to hold on to the boat until I swam ashore for assistance."

Two Brothers

by Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Two of my needy brothers begged for aid;
I gave both shelter, food and words of cheer.
Back to my roof crept one, at dead of night,
And robbed me of the fruits of honest toil.
The other follows when I walk abroad---
Love in his eyes, protection in his mein.
Now in God's vast immortal Paradise,
Which wins a place?---false friend or faithful dog?
Shall death pay love, and Life ingratitude?

Ten Lessons in Cooking—III

BY HENRY SCHMITT

Coffee, Tea and Chocolate

THE trouble with most coffee makers is that they do not keep their utensils and their kitchens clean. Absolute cleanliness is the first great rule in coffee making. The pot or kettle in which the water is boiled should never be used for anything other than the boiling of water, yet I have seen housewives put over water for the coffee in a basin which, although it had been washed, had been previously used for the preparing of vegetables.

The coffee pot should be immediately emptied after serving the coffee, and should be thoroughly cleaned with boiling water, nothing else. Coffee should never be allowed to stand in the pot.

An iron or tin pot should never be used for making coffee. Either an enameled or a granite pot is the only proper utensil.

There are many mixtures and grades of coffee. A very good mixture indeed is one of two-thirds Java and one-third Mocha, which can be obtained for thirty-five cents a pound.

Now for the coffee making:

For six cups of coffee a quart of boiling water and three ounces of ground coffee (an ordinary cupful) will make a strong, delicious beverage. For those who like their coffee unusually strong, four ounces of coffee may be used. Those who desire it weaker may use less than a three ounces.

Pour the quart of boiling water into the coffee pot and into it stir slowly the cup of ground coffee. Throw immediately upon the mixture a tablespoonful of cold water. This causes it to settle. Then reset the pot upon a very slow fire or over a low turned flame for ten or fifteen minutes. The mixture must not boil, but must be kept at boiling heat.

The coffee should be served in hot cups. Many a cup of good coffee is spoiled by being served improperly. If possible, cream should be served with it. If milk is served it should be rich milk.

For tea the same rules of cleanliness should prevail. The tea should be made in the earthenware pot from which it is to be served. A good tea of whatever flavor desired may be secured for sixty cents a pound. Upon the grade of the tea depends the amount measured for each person.

For a sixty-cent mixture one teaspoonful of tea should be used for two cups of boiling water. Put the dry tea in the pot which has been previously heated and then over the tea pour the boiling water. Put the pot in a warm place, but not over the fire, perhaps ten minutes. It should not be placed upon the fire even for a minute, for if the tea is allowed to boil it destroys the flavor.

It appears absurd to repeat the admonition of cleanliness in regard to chocolate, but it is one that can never be repeated too often or too firmly impressed upon the mind of the housewife.

One teaspoonful of cocoa or one ounce of unsweetened Baker's chocolate or one ounce of sweetened chocolate should be allowed for every cup of chocolate. The Baker's unsweetened chocolate will require the addition of a half teaspoonful of white granulated sugar.

Dissolve the chocolate over the fire as many portions of cocoa or chocolate as you have persons to serve. Add one cup of hot or cold milk for each portion of chocolate. Stir, and when the mixture comes to a boil serve immediately, preferably with whipped cream. Cream or milk may also be used.

Recipes

Broiled Tomatoes

Cut halves seven large tomatoes, scoop out the seeds and sprinkle over the insides well seasoned bread crumbs. Put them in the double broiler over the fire with the skin set downward and broil them for about ten minutes. When done place carefully on a hot dish with small bunch of butter sprinkled over them. Put into the oven and cook ten minutes. Serve very hot.

Pear Preserves

One dozen good cooking pears peeled and cored and cut into eights. One small lemon sliced thin (do not peel). One and a third cups sugar. Cook until tender. If you wish you can flavor with ginger or cinnamon.

Mother's Pumpkin Pie

Pare and cut into small pieces an ordinary sized pumpkin, put into kettle and cover with boiling water. Add two tea spoonfuls of salt and boil slowly until tender. Place on back of stove until water has almost evaporated, then rub through sieve. For a large pie take two cups of stewed pumpkin, three-quarters of a cup of sugar, one tablespoon of ginger, one of cinnamon and one and a half of molasses, one egg partly beaten, one-quarter teaspoon of salt, two of melted butter and two tablespoons of cornstarch mixed with three cups rich milk and

Tomato Omelet

Beat well four eggs. Season with minced parsley, salt and pepper and beat well again. Turn the mixture into frying pan with one and one half ounces of warmed butter. Cook over a clear fire. When done, pour over a few tablespoonfuls of thick tomato sauce. Turn the omelet over and serve on a hot dish.

Wild Grape Jelly

Strip the fruit from the stem, wash and put in a pan or jar set in a larger vessel of hot water. Cook until the fruit is soft, then strain. Measure the juice, and for every pint allow a pound of sugar in shallow pans in the oven, when it will heat but not boil. Cook the juice twenty minutes, skimming all impurities from it; add sugar; stir until dissolved, remove the spoon, cook a moment or two longer until the liquid jellies when dropped on a cold plate; pour into jelly glasses and cover when cold.

Sweet Potatoes

After sweet potatoes have been parboiled and sliced lengthwise they should be sprinkled lightly with white pepper, given a dash of salt and placed in the oven for a few moments. Then they are to have a dressing of egg and bread crumbs poured over them, and put below the flame of a gas range, where they can broil. Minced parsley is to be strewn over them just before they are sent to the table.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About five years ago I became acquainted with a young lady. At that time she was going to school. I was doing the same. We used to have good times together, but later she moved away. I, not knowing where she went, as I was away at the time. She five years I would not study as well, she being in my mind all the time, till at last I saw here one day, grown up to be a handsome young lady. I passed her, but she stared. I did not raise my hat, as I thought it her place to bow. Now she is living near me and I pass her quite often and would do anything to get her to speak to me again. Would you deem it right if I recognize her, as I think she is kind of shy, not knowing how to act? R. C. H.

If you are quite sure that she recognizes you and is too shy to speak, you might show her some shy and ask her if she remembers you. Or, better still, why not find out where she lives and call on her? That would place you on a footing of friendliness and help lessen the girl's shyness.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Would you kindly inform me what is the proper thing for a young man to wear to a church wedding? I am not acquainted with any one that will be present, but am going as an escort to my sister. Are the church will the usher take the lady to the seat, or will it be my duty to do so? If it is my duty, does the usher show us where to sit? If the usher takes the lady to the seat, what am I to do?

PERPLEXED.

If the wedding is in the evening, you should wear evening dress; if in the daytime, a frock coat and light trousers, or if you do not own a frock coat you might wear a cutaway. The usher will show your sister to a seat, and you will follow them. Sit with your sister.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About two weeks ago I was introduced through a friend to a young lady, sixteen years of age, and I liked her right away. I have found out she kept company with another fellow, but does not any more. I have been several places with her, and she acts like a lady. I also met her father and mother at her home. Now will I be wrong duty to do so? If it is my duty, does the usher show us where to sit? If the usher takes the lady to the seat, what am I to do?

ASK her. Timidity never yet won a woman.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man of eighteen. About a year ago, coming back and forth from work, I used to meet a young lady, a year my senior, who spoke to me mornings and nights. After a while we used to have long conversations every evening, while I accompanied her. Then I used to meet her very frequent. This lasted for about a year. Then one evening I went to the school unexpectedly and waited for her. When she came out she spoke, saying "Good evening," and went home with another young man who came to see her. For awhile we did not speak, until one evening coming from work I met her. She said "Good evening," mentioning my name, and ever since then she has been speaking to me. Do you think it advisable for me to go with her? She has excused herself for all wrongdoing.

Providence, R. I.

WAITING.

If you care for her and wish to keep company with her, I should do so. Apparently she has come to her senses. With another fellow, but does not any more. I have been several places with her, and she acts like a lady. Also met her father and mother at her home. Now will I be wrong duty to do so? If it is my duty, does the usher show us where to sit? If the usher takes the lady to the seat, what am I to do?

This Summer I met a young lady with whom I fell in love at first sight. Ever since the time. We were out together one evening, and she began to talk to me just like a mother and asked me to stop drinking. I told her I couldn't stop it. She began to cry. Now I don't understand it to have any mercy where I am; so I said good night and went home. I thought over it, and I haven't drank a drop since. I feel in my heart that she was the cause of my stopping drinking. I can marry her, but I am not sure that is what I want to be. I am willing to do anything under heavens for her. Do you think I had better marry her? I am afraid if I don't I will drift back into my former ways. C. L. S.

Newcastle.

It seems to me the young lady has a great deal of good influence over you. If you feel sure that your love for her has conquered your desire for drink and wish to marry her you should do so. If you are not in a position to do so now I am sure she will be willing to wait for you. While you are waiting be sure that you do not allow yourself to drift back into your old habits.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am keeping company with a young man. I love him very much, but he can neither read nor write. Kindly advise me how I could teach him.

THE best thing for him to do would be to go to one of the elementary night schools. The expense would be very little, and if he is anxious to learn he could do so very quickly. Of course, you might try teaching him yourself, but it would be very hard work.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man, twenty-one years old, and sole support of my aged mother. Have a neat nice home and am earning $20 per month, with possible increase in the near future. Besides that, I am going to the evening study of drawing this month. I am in love with a young lady who has been keeping company with him for over a year, with the object of getting married. Though we are not yet engaged it is mutually agreed; but on account of my mother's sickness and other circumstances I am unable to save any money. As I am prudentially supporting a home now would it not be better for me to marry her and take her to live with my mother, or would you advise me to wait and start a home of my own? I would not like to leave my mother alone, as I consider it my duty to take care of her. Also, ought I to get married before the completion of my studies? I look at it this way: Courting costs money (however little), though my sweetheart does not wish me to spend any unnecessarily. If I get married to her I think we would not care to go out often, though I would not deprive her or myself of these innocent amusements entirely. I can see no other way out of it. What do you think? DOUBTFUL.

YOU are very young, and already carry a good deal of responsibility and expense. If the girl has a comfortable, happy home, I would advise you to wait a few years before marrying. Of course, it is hard to wait, but as long as you have her love and trust the time will not seem long. If you think she will wait, become a good son, makes a good husband, and if she is the right sort of girl she will appreciate your devotion toward your mother and love you all the better for it. You should think of you and wonder what you have decided on.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am very much infatuated with a young lad and he with me. I am twenty-five years old and he is thirty-eight. We love each other very much and live in the same house. This young man is married, but has not lived with his wife for several years and does not intend to any more. He became acquainted two years ago. He is very loving to me and says he will marry me when he gets a divorce. He told me so several months ago, but has not said anything about it since. Is it my duty to remind him of his promise? There is one thing I do not like; I am informed by girl friends that he is seen going quite often to his wife's house. I think if he loves me he ought to give up all visits and dealings with his wife. I do not like it, as I love him as well. LOVING YOUNG WOMAN.

I THINK you would be much better off without the young man in question. It is not honorable for him to ask you to marry him when he is not free to do so, and by so doing he places yourself to him until you know he is in a position to marry you.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN

Girl's Tucked Frock

No. 4484—Fashion has been very kind to the little misses in furnishing us many pretty styles to select from. Made from any of the materials mentioned, and also of cotton crepe, lawn, gingham, percale or chambray, as the season advances, this dress will be found a thing for quilting frocks, and they certainly are pretty and childlike, especially when set off by a large collar.

As to the little model shown here, deep tucks form the upper skirt portion, which is joined to the full skirt, which are gathered into a belt, and the fronts may be worn at either side, as the cap-sleeve—so much in vogue—loses none of its attractiveness when employed in the girl's dress. The frock may be made of one material and worn with a guimpe, or made altogether, using plain or contrasting material for yoke, collar, cuffs and belt, as preferred.

The pattern is cut in four sizes, 6 years, 8 years, 10 years and 12 years. It is figured chalk in dark blue or red, using white for lines, or if preferred, another contrasting may be used. The pattern also includes the round collar, which, if made of linen, would be removable. A dark colored school dress, made up in this way, will be found very fresh and neat looking, by having two or three of the white pique collars in whites or colors, that can be put into the wash and under the circumstances it can make to and be laundered than a dress or waist, and yet it is just these little things that keep the dress looking nice and fresh. Gingham, percale, chambray, silk, linen or cashmere affords suitable selection for such a frock.

Sizes—6, 8, 7, 9, 10, 12 and 14 years.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN will mail a pattern of the above upon receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps (coin preferred).

All orders should be addressed to HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 2053, Boston, Mass.

SHE SAYS WE SHOULD HASTEN TO LOVE OTHERS AND KEEP HATE IN THE BACKGROUND

ISN'T IT dreadful that we let by some little word or action that you love him?

How many husbands argue to themselves: "My wife knows I love her. Why bother to repeat the fact?"

And how many wives remember that words of love and encouragement will be of great cheer to the hard-working provider for the family?

We should never forget that love is the hub round which the entire world revolves, and if we miss our share of it we are missing the best thing that life has to offer us.

Without love all the successes in life are flavorless.

Do you think that the multi-millionaire is happy if he has no love in his home, or that the most beautifully gowned woman on earth is satisfied without love?

We simply cannot live without it, and yet we expect to do so little to keep it.

We treat love very much as though we were running to catch a street car; after we catch it we don't run any more.

Well, love, you see, is not a street car, so we must keep on running if we want to keep it.

Love won't stand the tiniest scrap of neglect. And let me tell you this, when once it goes, not you, nor I, nor all the tears on earth can bring it back again.

Do not spend so much affection on your friends that you have none left for the home circle.

Remember that the friends may be only for the time being, but the dear ones at home are the ones who give you a lifetime of love, so don't neglect that love, but give it back full measure and overflowing.

Don't be ashamed to say to one and all, "I love you."

For every time you say it now you will be glad in the years to come.

ASSEMBLIES ARE TO LOSE OLD LEADERS

Familiar Figures Conspicuous in the Past Will Be Missing This Season.

By Billie Beacon.

Mrs. Thomas E. Proctor is back at her town house on Beacon street, returning yesterday. Her advent into Boston was delayed several hours on account of an accident in which she figured at Pride's Crossing. Mrs. Proctor left her country home safe and sound and was on her way to the station to take the train, she was behind a spirited pair of blacks and when they met an automobile the horses at once began to cut capers. The driver lost control of the animals and they dashed into a stone wall, demolishing the carriage and throwing Mrs. Proctor out. She sustained a badly bruised ankle and a severe shaking up. She was taken to a nearby farm house and a doctor called. After she had recovered from the shock, which was really the most serious part of her injuries, she was taken to the train and is now safely ensconced in her Winter home.

A number of Mrs. Proctor's friends heard of her accident, and have called or written letters of sympathy, but to her callers Mrs. Proctor smilingly says: "I am really all right. With the exception of a little lameness I am as well as ever." I expect to see her about in a few days, for her doctor tells me that her injury is slight, and she is rapidly mending.

Lady Dorothy Legge, daughter of the Earl of Dartmouth, who has been with us here in Boston, is one of the most interesting English women who has visited America for many a year. This lady is a deep student of political economy, and, like her brother, Viscount Lewisham, is a warm admirer of the younger nation, and especially America. So deep is her interest in the American people and their methods of government that she has persuaded her father to remain over for the election, and, although the Earl has duties that call him back to England he has conceded to the wishes of his daughter, and will remain, sailing for England the day after the voting.

The assemblies, the most exclusive affairs that Boston gives in the Winter, will suffer, I am afraid, by the death of Arthur Hunnewell. Not only was he at the head of the committee of six, but he was a cotillion leader as well, and Mrs. Hunnewell has been a patroness. His death will prevent all the Hunnewells, the Francis Sargents, the Robert G. Shaws and the George Baty Blakes from entering into the assembly festivities. All these people will be more or less identified with the affairs, and the withdrawal of their patronage will be quite a setback.

Then, again, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer will be absent from the gatherings, as she is still in mourning for her mother, Mrs. Paul Revere. Mrs. E. V. R. Thayer will be another one of the supporters who will be absent. She will remain in Lancaster for the Winter, and although she may come down to Boston, I doubt if she will take part in the social life.

Mrs. Arthur Blake, one of the oldest of the patronesses, will be another absentee, as she has been compelled to go into mourning by the death of her brother, Dr. Frank Greenough, and Mrs. Sargent, who has served for seven years, will be absent on account of the recent death of her mother, Miss Robeson.

With the list as depleted as it is I am wondering who will arise to take the vacant places. It is probable that some of the younger set will be asked, but they will not bring with them the prestige and following that the older women brought.

* * *

Tod S. Parker Brenner, of Bay State road, and Mrs. John L. Brenner, Mr. Brenner's mother, are in St. Louis taking in the Fair and its attendant festivities. They left yesterday and will be gone for about two weeks. Upon their return Mrs. Brenner, Sr., will open her town house on Beacon street, but Mr. S. Parker will return to their shore home at Smith's Point, which they will keep open until Thanksgiving.

* * *

I hear that Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Thorn King, who sailed from Boston the middle of September for an indefinite stay abroad, are in London and will remain there until the middle of November. They plan to spend the Winter in Paris and next Summer will be heard from in Switzerland and Southern Italy.

NEW YORK'S "SUBWAY STARE," THE NEWEST AFFLICTION IN THE GREAT METROPOLIS

Gothamites' New Transit System Producing Unexpected Effects on Patrons.

Opening of the Underground Railway Responsible for Variety of Facial Distortion.

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—New York has the "subway stare."

With the opening of the new subway thousands hastened to ride through the big tube. And now they find their faces don't fit.

New York become accustomed to the scared look of the motorman, the goggle-eyed scowl of the autoist and the bung-eyed glare of the baseball fan when the score is "tied in the ninth, bases full and Keeler at the bat."

But these look like a "Baby sleeps" picture alongside of the "subway stare." It gives a person an expression such as he would get if he put his shoe on and found a mouse in it.

There is a worried look about the eyes, which wink spasmodically. There is a nervous twitching of the facial muscles, as though the face had gone to sleep and was trying hard to wake up.

It all comes from riding in the speedy subway trains and having eyes and ears subjected to the whirring shadows and the rackety din of the subway travel.

As the trains picks up speed the outlines of the tunnel walls flit by like rapid-fire ghosts and the eyes begin to blink. That is the beginning of the "subway stare." Then the ears are confused by the "ripety-zip-zip" of the wheels on the rails. It makes the ears ache. The head begins to follow suit.

Then another train passes and the place sounds like a boiler shop having an attack of the "horrors." The passenger wonders if the wreck will catch fire and add to the death list.

The faces opposite which other passengers brought in with them then begin to look unnerving. Between the noisy feeling in his own head and the weird looks of the other people, the passenger feels like gibbering a few gibbers to himself. He gets out into the air and the daylight hits him like a piece of lead pipe. And the "subway stare" claims him for his own.

NEW YORK'S SUBWAY FACE.

BAR WATSON FROM BALLOT

The ballot commissioners to-day decided that the name of James A. Watson as an independent candidate for sheriff cannot be placed on the official ballot.

The protest against the placing of Watson's name on the ticket was made by Sheriff Seavey, who is a candidate for re-election, having received the nomination of both parties. It was claimed that Watson did not have the signatures of the requisite number of legal voters to his petition to entitle him to a place on the ticket.

Watson contended that he did, and declared after he heard the decision of the commissioners that he would take the matter to the courts.

WARMER WAVE IS PREDICTED

A warmer wave is coming, says the Weather Bureau. It will continue warm and fair for the next three days. This gives promise of a pleasant Sunday.

To-day it is from one to two degrees colder than the same day a year ago. At Northfield, Vermont, the highest northern point in New England, the mercury registered sixteen above zero at midnight, rising to twenty degrees at 8 o'clock this morning. The second coldest point was Concord, N. H., where it was twenty degrees above. At Portland, Maine, it ran from twenty-six to twenty-eight, at Eastport, from twenty-six to twenty-eight. In Boston it has been warmer than at any other New England point, being thirty above at midnight and rising to thirty-two at 8 o'clock to-day.

CHESS PLANS ARRANGED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Sir George Newnes, of London, who is at present in Washington, has been apprised by the Brooklyn Chess Club that arrangements for the holding of the ninth international cable chess match for the Newnes trophy have been completed.

WHY APPENDICITIS?

Why is appendicitis so common to-day?

Because we have got into the pernicious habit of eating too fast.

Dr. Curtis, the great authority on this disease, says: "Appendicitis often follows the eating of a very hasty, or particularly large or indigestible meal."

After carelessly following a fools' custom, you can ensure your safety by taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. It is a powerful, scientific truth, which admits of no dispute, that if you will only keep your digestive apparatus in good order by overeating, and upon the least sign of stomach or intestinal trouble, for otherwise, at any time, this dangerous disease may lay you low.

The curative influence of this great medicine is quickly shown in the gentle, soothing effect it has on all inflamed conditions of any part of the digestive tract.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets tone all these parts up to a proper condition of perfect health, and regulate them action into a proper working state.

They also make away with all the causes of irritation, inflammation or indigestion, by helping to dissolve, digest and assimilate, or put to proper use, all the food which is lying around in odd corners of your digestive apparatus, fermenting, rotting and curdling, like so much garbage in a dirt bin.

In these natural and perfectly simple ways, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets restore all sufferers, from any form of dyspeptic trouble, to health.

They are safe and reliable. They never fail to relieve and cure, quickly and permanently.

Use them, and you need never worry about your appendix vermiformitis.

The Kirschbaum Greatcoat

With Long, Loose, Full Back, With or Without Belt.

This coat bids fair to supersede the popular long coat of the last two winters. Most men are partial to the long coats; they say they are better for all-round wear and all kinds of weather. The belt coat, in particular, was extremely popular all last winter. This greatcoat of Kirschbaum's is in many ways similar and yet there are numerous points of difference.

The back of the new coat is more ample and the hang from the shoulders is different. Then there is more fullness all round, which makes them easier to walk in; there is less drag to them in the long, free stride. The general appearance is altogether better and if you wish to see the richest and handsomest long overcoat of the season come in and see one of these.

Materials are fancy cheviots and mixtures and each one is a triumph of fine overcoat making.

1,000 Men's Single and Double Breasted Suits

From a Leading Maker at Less Than Cost of Materials

The very finest bargains of this present season are here for your choosing to-day. A thousand suits in the latest Fall and Winter styles, newest patterns and colorings, luxuriously trimmed and tailored and perfect in every way, are to be offered at a price that is way below wholesale cost. In short, we are able to sell you this week

12.50, 15.00 and 18.00 Single and Double Breasted Suits for 9.75

9.75

Every size in every pattern is not here, but all sizes are in the lot. The gist of the whole matter is this: The retailing season is just beginning, the manufacturers' season is over; the maker cannot tell just how many suits of each size it will take to fill his orders, and when the season's trade is over he is likely to have a dozen suits in a given pattern of one size, two dozen of another, and perhaps two or three of a third. These are what he calls broken assortments. We went to one of the leading makers and took all the sizes in all the suits he had left, and they are suits that he sells regularly at wholesale for $10.00 and $12.50, and that retail for $12.50, $15.00 and $18.00 apiece. To these we have added all our own broken lots that have been selling at the same prices, and shall offer you unrestricted choice for $9.75. In the lot are Scotch Cheviots, black Cheviots and Thibets and handsome Worsteds, luxuriously trimmed and tailored; coats have the broad shoulder effect and will retain their shape, their looks and their color to the end. Styles are both single and double-breasted, fabrics the newest and you may choose for $9.75

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, OCTOBER 1904.

Canfield as a Preacher

His Sermon Is Good, Whatever You May Think of Him.

Richard Canfield, who has had a wide opportunity to study the habits and vices of young men, has been denouncing racetrack gambling as a very pernicious and demoralizing practice.

To a race promoter he said the other evening:

Your racetrack has made embezzlers by the thousands. You, through your racetrack game, have broken more hearts, ruined more homes, sent more boys and young men to the penitentiary than any other agency permitted by law to exist.

While the BOSTON AMERICAN readers will find in this assertion nothing that we have not repeated in this column time and time again, this newspaper gladly welcomes Mr. Canfield as a useful ally in its war on the vice he condemns.

Whatever may be said against Mr. Canfield concerning his modes of entertaining his guests at his home in Forty-fourth street, New York, or his place of amusement at Saratoga, the fact remains that he is an expert in his own particular branch of knowledge.

He may speak without full information or careful thought when he says that no man who ever visited his house afterward became an embezzler.

Mr. Canfield has entertained a great many young men, and has probably not kept accurate track of their careers since they last visited him. And it seems hardly probable that he consults the records of the penitentiaries often enough to know whether any of his former friends are confined there.

But, leaving that part of his statement out of the argument, the fact remains that he is a student of a certain kind of life, and a very close and observing student.

He has lived a great deal in Saratoga, where any one who chooses can see the evil results of racetrack gambling.

He has visited the tracks in this country and abroad, and being an expert in what is called the "sporting life" has noted the haggard, frightened boys in the betting ring who have lost money that did not belong to them, and who are looking out beyond the ring and the track to visions of trials and prison bars.

But the value of Mr. Canfield's testimony is still greater because he knows JUST EXACTLY HOW MUCH CHANCE THE VICTIMS OF THE BOOKMAKERS HAVE OF WINNING.

He is, or is supposed to be, highly skilled in the practice and theory of chance.

He would probably be able to tell you the percentages that go to the "house" on the "squarest" of gambling games, and demonstrate to your entire satisfaction that the player has far from the best of it.

And he knows from observation and study that the racetrack gambling games are NOT SQUARE—that the deluded youths who think they can play "systems" against them successfully have no more chance than a poor scared little rabbit would have in the clutches of a hungry wolf.

Therefore, when Mr. Canfield loses his temper and tells wholesome truths about the other fellow's game, he becomes a public benefactor to a certain extent.

And if you have been planning to win money on the races by any wonderful "system" which some kind friend has explained to you, you will do well to heed what he says.

For, perhaps, in all the world there is no one better qualified to warn boys and young men away from all kinds of gambling, and particularly the nefarious variety that flourishes at the racetrack, than this same Richard Canfield.

The American Girl Who Won the Greatest Victory in All History

Perhaps you were born poor, and had to begin life without education at an age when you should have been at school; maybe from the beginning there were responsibilities forced upon you that worked against your progress. You feel that you were handicapped in the race, and are inclined to blame fate that you are not greater, or wiser, or richer than you are.

If this is your attitude, there is a lesson for you in recent news, wherein was narrated the story of the great honor paid to Helen Keller at St. Louis. The Exposition City is full of famous people. Great soldiers, preachers, teachers, inventors and philanthropists are there now, or have been there. The men and women of to-day, who have made their mark on history's page, are among the visitors to the fair, but to one person only was offered the tribute of having a special day set aside in her honor.

This girl was born with disadvantages beside which the handicaps that move so many men and women to self pity seem trivial and unworthy of consideration. By her own efforts and the helping hand of the most wonderful teacher in the world she broke from the prison to which it seemed she had been condemned—broke the double bars of silence and darkness, and took her place among the useful, competent men and women of her time.

The next time you feel like bemoaning your fate and cursing your luck think of what Helen Keller met and surmounted, and BRACE UP.

Will Winter Again Win for the Russian?

Will the cold come to the rescue of the Russian and destroy Oyama, as it killed the army of Napoleon in the Winter of 1812? They say there will be no Winter quarter surcease from fighting in Manchuria. On September 6, 1812, Napoleon lost 30,000 men in killing 50,000 Russians at Borodino. He did not order up the 20,000 of the Guard to complete the victory, and the Russians got away. If Napoleon had crushed the Russians at Borodino he could have wintered in Moscow, or around it, and could have saved his army. If Oyama does not crush Kuropatkin in the present fighting, will he be in the position of Napoleon when, on October 18, 1812, the Emperor marched south from Moscow? Then the Russians began to fight, and on December 6, when the border of Russia was crossed there was left of the French army only a skeleton.

The Russian can stand the cold better than the Japanese.

Liao-Yang was a Borodino to the Russians. He was beaten, but not destroyed. If Oyama wins in this second fight he must crush the Russians or run the risk of the peril of a Winter campaign. The crisis in the affairs of Japan is now on. Japanese military strength on land is at flood tide now. If it does not sweep Oyama to a great victory his supreme opportunity is gone.

THE RIBBON COUNTER GIRL

By James Montague

"Say, I nearly died" —

SAY, Mame, I've got a real romwance this time, an' there ain't any mistake about that. Naw, not that fellah. I've had three since him. He was cheap. He wanted to take me into the gallery at the theatre. What do you think of that? An' although he'd bought the tickets, an' took me down there and everything, when I saw the man at the door piloting him toward the gallery, I says:

"Excuse me; were you unable to obtain seats in the parket?"

He stammers and blushes, an' says: "Yes, Miss Manning, the parket seats was all gone, but we can see just as well from where we're goin'."

An' I says: "I'll really have to beg your pardon, but if you need the money to buy meal tickets or anything, I wouldn't for the world think of havin' you waste it on a mere girl like me."

I always think of smart things like that to say, just at the right time, too, an' if you was to ask me how I do it, you know, I couldn't tell you.

Well, he was pretty sick, and he stood there lookin' something about trying to get better seats, but I just flounced out an' left him, an' I ain't seen him since, an' don't want to.

Yes, ma'am, them is rainbow ribbons. Well, of course, you'll have to pay a high price if you want them kind. No; we ain't got no cheaper. I guess, perhaps, you've got into the wrong store. No? Well, I can't show you any cheaper ones. Oh, don't mention it. Good day.

But the real rowmance I was going to tell you about, Mame, was this:

When I was about fourteen years old I see a photograph in a glass case in front of a gallery of a handsome young man, an' the eyes seemed to be lookin' right into mine, as if to say:

"We was born for each other, Myrtle, dear. Why does a cruel fate keep us apart?"

I've dreamed about that face thousands of times, and one day I got up courage enough to go up to the photographer and ask him who it was.

He told me the name was Henry De Grow, an' just a night or two ago when I was at the theatre there was the owner of the face sittin' right next to me.

He was awfully startled when he seen me, an' I blushed scarlet, so that the feller I was with began to ask me questions.

Well, I didn't see him again for quite a while, till this morning. When I went to the new clerk that's at the next counter to ask him for the loan of his scissors, havin' forgot mine, I found him leanin' pensive on the counter, gazin' out in the distance. I spoke to him, an' he looks up, an' what do you b'lieve? It was him!

Say, I nearly died. Well, I didn't have no opportunity to be introduced, so I merely asks him for his scissors an' goes away, an' when I looks around over my shoulder, there he was lookin' after me, with his eyes full of vague mystery.

Ain't it wonderful? I expect all the others was just preparation for this one, 'cuse I can't help feelin' that my hour has come. How do you think Mrs. Henry De Grow would sound on a weddin' invitation?

That's him now, talkin' to that silly lookin' blonde, the washed-out, pink-eyed one. Go look him over an' see if you don't think he's handsome.

"I just flounced out an' left him, an' I don't seen him since, an' don't want to."

Hats Off to Baby Brown

By Harry B. Metcalf

You may talk about babies that win at the fairs,
Or infants of princely renown;
But show me the kid if you can that compares
With little John Nicholas Brown.

A nurse at his elbow, at ten thousand per,
Keeps watch for his feet or his frown;
A valet, imported, stands by to defer
To the whim of John Nicholas Brown.

Ten millions piled high in the bank in his name
Can buy him the whole of the town—
Yet he gets along nicely on milk, does this same
Delightful John Nicholas Brown.

An army of kitchmen are ever on call
To pose as the puppet and clown—
Yet when he would play he's content with his doll,
Is joyful John Nicholas Brown.

When they put him to bed he deliciously lies
In a heaven of silk and of down—
Yet when he gets hurt it's a fact that he cries,
Does doleful John Nicholas Brown.

You may talk about babies to wisdom inclined,
Or infants of princely renown,
But hunt the world over and where can you find
The like of John Nicholas Brown?

Little Editorials from the People

ARE MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE THE BUSINESS OF THE STATE ONLY?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Allow me to put in a protest against the clergy assuming the right of solemnizing marriages and deciding whether divorces are valid. There is no man who can say to another man: "I give you the right to marry this woman," any more than he can assume the right of dictating to his neighbor what to eat or what to wear. None but officers of the State should bind the marriage contract or grant divorces, or make laws regarding the remarriage of divorced people. Church people should keep their hands off, though they may make laws how far they will allow divorced people to enter their respective communities or churches.

Christ at the marriage of Cana did not assume the right of a clergyman for a fee nor did he send his apostles to marry people, but to convert them from wickedness and sin. Let the clergy confine themselves to that. People converted from sin will not seek divorce, for the marriages of such are made in heaven, and what God has joined together no man can put asunder. The marriages and divorces of wicked people and of the children of the world the clergy had best leave to the supervision of the State.

THOMAS E. WATSON PLEASED WITH HIS WELCOME TO BOSTON

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In behalf of the People's party and of Mr. Watson and myself, I thank you most heartily for the generous sentiment accorded us in connection with the rally at Faneuil Hall last evening.

When the abnormal pressure upon your columns, due to the present startling situation in the Far East war and its possible effect upon the foreign relations, and the congestion caused by the coincident rally of another party, is considered, the liberal space devoted to our demonstration, both anticipatory and post, is all the more creditable.

Mr. Watson assured me this morning that he was gratified and profoundly impressed by the splendid ovation accorded him by the people and press of Boston.

Aside from my partisan predilection, I took especial pride as a citizen of Massachusetts in heading the most distinguished delegation from the South. It is not only thoroughly appreciated by him, but the entire section he represents, regardless of party politics, will, I believe, share this feeling.

Again thanking you for your kindness in the premises, I remain, sincerely yours.

Boston, Oct. 26. G. F. WASHBURN.

ESTIMATES ON THE POPULAR VOTE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I shall be very grateful for a little help in deciding how large an estimate to make in the coming Presidential election. I am an invalid, but read a good deal; take your paper every evening; liked Mr. Hearst's speech very much and wish our country could take a turn for the right and make ours a truly prosperous nation.

It is thought the present vote will be a large one—15,000,000 at least. Is there a probability of its being a little more or some less—which?

HELEN M. RICHARDS.

East Lexington, Mass.

The total popular vote for all candidates for President in 1896 was 13,-823,378 and in 1900 was 13,961,566. This would indicate that unless the voters come out in extraordinary numbers on November 8 the total this year will be considerably less than 15,000,000.—ED.
